Mayoralty candidate Bill Scott has day in court.

Harshly Treated by Police, Arrested Candidate Claims

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

Mayoralty candidate Bill Scott charged today he was given unduly harsh treatment by city police after his arrest at the Royal Theatre Monday night on a charge of assault by trespass.

Scott, 73, pleaded not guilty in provincial court this morning. He was remanded to Jan. 3 to fix a date for trial.

Scott said after his court appearance he was stripped of his shoes and forced to stand in police cells for two hours before bail was arranged by his lawyer, Rod Taylor.

The candidate also said he was not given an opportunity to count the cash on his person before it was taken by police. The amount involved was about $400, he said.

Scott challenged Isherwood's cultural credentials, first by reciting Shakespeare and then by singing an operatic aria.

When police arrived, Scott said he greeted them by singing Gilbert and Sullivan's "A Policeman's Lot Is Not a Happy One."

Taylor asked Judge William Ostler if the case could be disposed of quickly, "before a certain contest this Saturday."

Ostler noted that because a number of witnesses would be called in the case, the Crown could not reasonably be expected to be ready to proceed today — although an unexpected snarl in the calendar would have provided the necessary court time.

Scott also claimed police refused him permission to call his lawyer, a doctor or Mayor Haddock.

Taylor said he was notified by police of Scott's arrest and detention. The lawyer hurried to the station and arranged for Scott's release on his own recognizance.

The candidate has demanded a hearing before the police commission on his charges. He said Mayor Haddock had already apologized for the incident.

Victoria deputy police chief Ray Maitland said in an interview he had had no opportunity to speak to the jailer, but he was sure that Scott would have been "treated with every courtesy befitting the situation."

Maitland said there were certain regulations enforced for the safety of apprehended persons, such as depriving him of such items as shoes and tie.

On Scott's statement that he would seek a police commission hearing of the charges, Maitland said that would be up to the mayor and the commission.

"I would welcome a hearing if that's what Mr. Scott wants," he added.

Scott noted that should he win in Saturday's election he would, as the city's chief magistrate, be conducting the commission inquiry himself.

Trudeau More Optimistic

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau returned from Washington today, expressing optimism that the United States would withdraw its 10 per cent import surcharge if a meeting of the Group of Ten later this month is successful.

Speaking at a news conference in the U.S. capital following two meetings Monday with President Nixon, Trudeau earlier said that U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally was hopeful that the upcoming monetary meeting in Washington would produce some world currency alignments.

He said however, if the December session is not conclusive, negotiators will have another chance to reach some sort of agreement in January.

During the 45-minute news conference Trudeau said his talks with Nixon indicated that the United States is respecting Canadian identity and has not "stopped loving us."

NO HEADLINES

The prime minister said the Canadian delegation discussed many bilateral problems but assured newsmen that there will be "no headlines this morning" as far as reporting of any substantial agreements. He said he and Nixon made "another step in over-all progress" but repeated that there was nothing concrete.

Regarding the 1965 Canadian-American auto pact, Trudeau said Canada did not press any new concessions to the United States and that his talks on the subject with Nixon were of a general nature.

"We let the slugging go on in the other room," Trudeau said, referring to more detailed talks on the same subject between Finance Minister Edgar J. Benson, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and their U.S. counterparts, Con-

Terror Fire Kills Sally Ann Worker

BELFAST (CP)—A woman Salvation Army worker was killed and more than 600 workers are jobless today in the aftermath of a terror bombing that ignited Belfast's worst fire in many years, destroying an entire block of buildings in the city centre.

The Associated Press said it was the worst fire in a decade; Reuter said it was believed to be the biggest since the wartime German blitz against Northern Ireland's capital city.

Security authorities blamed the Irish Republic Army for the bombs which Monday night ripped into a six-floor carpet factory.

Two gunmen, one with a pistol, one with a machine-gun, gave workers 10 minutes to evacuate the Victorian building while they planted their explosives.

NEWS BRIEFS

Hotel Fire

WINNIPEG (CP) — A two-alarm fire damaged the 210-room Fort Garry Hotel of Canadian National Railways early today, sending one man to hospital and trapping three persons on the upper floors for an hour. More than 90 guests, including federal Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, were evacuated from the 58-year-old building and taken to other hotels.

Deal Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American officials have agreed to deliver 12 to 18 A4 Skyhawk jet warplanes to Israel starting late in 1972, the Washington Post said today.

Slide Resumes

Sharp Increase In B.C. Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — The chill winds of approaching winter pushed the jobless total up to 503,000 last month, a sharp increase for the month but about average for this time of year, Statistics Canada reported today.

While unemployment in British Columbia jumped to 7.1 per cent last month from 5.7 in October, it remained short of the 8.6-per-cent rate recorded in November last year.

As expected because of the season, there were sharply fewer jobs available in agriculture and construction. And while employment in the trade industries improved, there were more layoffs in manufacturing.

The 503,000 without jobs at mid-November compared with 447,000 at mid-October and 476,000 at mid-November last year. An estimated 46,000 workers left the labor market in November this year, reducing the total labor force to 8.65 million from nearly 8.7 million in October.

This meant that the actual rate of unemployment as a percentage of the total labor force rose last month to 5.8 from 5.1 in October. It was 5.7 per cent in November last year.

SAYS TREND DOWN

However, Statistics Canada said the underlying trend of unemployment edged down a bit last month.

Taking its actual survey figures and modifying them to reflect the trend of unemployment without the seasonal factors such as the approaching winter, the statistics bureau said the seasonally-adjusted rate declined to 6.6 in November from 6.7 in October.

It had reached a peak of 7.1 in September after dropping to 6.3 last July.

Economists normally look to this seasonally-adjusted rate to indicate how well the country is performing. Month-to-month actual rates can vary widely between high unemployment in the depths of winter and lower jobless figures at the peak of summer activity.

The bureau reported the number of workers employed declined to 2.15 million from 8.25 million in October. This was slightly larger than an average month-to-month decline in the number of workers with jobs, and most of the decline was seasonal in nature.

Concerning the jobless, the bureau said there was an above-average increase in unemployment among men aged 25 and over, while the increased jobless numbers among men and women aged 24 and younger was usual for this time of year.

The figures are estimates based on a Statistics Canada survey of 30,000 households, taken for the week ended Nov. 13.

SHOTS MISS CANADA PLANE

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian Hercules transport plane turned back from a second attempt to land at Dacca in East Pakistan today after anti-aircraft fire was spotted from ships in the Bay of Bengal, a defence department spokesman said.

He said the anti-aircraft fire was close enough to cause concern to the Hercules crew. The plane was not hit and nobody was injured.

The Canadian plane is trying to fly refugees out of Dacca on behalf of the United Nations.

India Claims East Victory

Times News Services

India claimed sweeping victories in East Pakistan today, saying the Pakistani army was in retreat. It called for the Pakistanis to surrender there. But in the West, India admitted setbacks in Kashmir.

India abandoned Chamb, in western Kashmir, 30 miles from the major Indian city of Jammu, a spokesman said.

But in East Pakistan, India claimed the Pakistani army was cut off by air and sea and Gen. Sam Maneckshaw, Indian chief of staff, told the 80,000 Pakistini fighting there:

"Time is running out. Lay down your arms before it is too late."

Radio Pakistan announced that President Yahya Khan had asked two prominent politicians to form a civilian government. No date was set. Nurual Amin, a rightist from East Pakistan, was offered the post of prime minister with former foreign minister Zulfika Ali Bhutto, leader of the leftist People's Party, as deputy prime minister.

Meanwhile at the United Nations the General Assembly began emergency debate on the Indo-Pakistani war today with Argentina proposing an immediate ceasefire and withdrawal of troops of both sides.

The war issue was sent to the General Assembly Monday night after Soviet vetoes twice blocked similar proposals in the security council.

And in Washington the United States announced today its decision to channel all further peacemaking efforts in the India-Pakistan war through the United Nations General Assembly.

RAPID ADVANCE

A Pakistini spokesman in Rawalpindi said the Pakistani forces were advancing rapidly in Kashmir.

The Chamb sector is in southwestern Kashmir between the Indian city of Jammu and Sailkot in West Pakistan. It is ideal for tank manoeuvres and was the scene of heavy fighting in the 1965 war between India and Pakistan for the still-disputed territory of Kashmir.

The Indian spokesman said Pakistani forces have put heavy pressure on the Chamb sector and Poonch to the north since last Wednesday.

"The main activity has been in those two sectors of Jammu and Kashmir," he said, "and they have repeatedly tried to capture Poonch."

The spokesman added that the purpose of the Pakistani attack in the Chamb sector was to cut the New Delhi-Kashmir highway, which parallels the border for nearly 30 miles and runs through the Chamb areas.

Poonch is a major link between the Pakistan capital of Rawalpindi and Srinagar, the Indian capital of Kashmir.

In addition to committing the ground forces, the Pakistanis have flown scores of sor-

ROBOT ON MARS

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union parachuted the first scientific robot on to Mars but its television signals stopped after only "brief" operation, amid hurricane-force dust storms, the Tass news agency said Tuesday.

The landing took place five days ago, but Tass did not report it until today. The report gave no reason for the delay, and it gave no hint of what caused the robot to fail after an apparent successful soft landing.

The U.S. Mariner 9 photographic probe has reported that a dust storm is raging over most of the planet's surface. Tass said wind speed on Mars may be as high as 300 miles an hour.

Tass said the Mars robot broke away from its Mars mother ship on Dec. 2 after an 188-day journey from earth. It parachuted to a Martian plain in the southern hemisphere between the regions of Electris and Phaetonic.

Atom Plant Bombed

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Two bombs exploded at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center today, causing what officials estimated at up to $100,000 damage to the world's largest device for atomic particle research.

There were no injuries and no radiation leaks, officials said.

Burial Firm May Face Charge

A cemetery company under provincial government trusteeship for almost two years has failed to file an annual report with the provincial companies office for the past six years.

Colwood Improvement Company Ltd. which runs the Colwood Cemetery Company, Hatley Memorial Gardens and Colwood Burial Park on Sooke Road, hasn't filed an annual report since 1965.

The Companies Act requires annual meetings and annual reports and failure to observe the act can result in fines of up to $500 a day.

The Public Utilities Commission appointed a trustee-administrator to take charge of the company in March, 1969, citing shortages in cemetery perpetual care and maintenance funds as the reason.

Other related cemetery companies in Port Alberni and Kelowna were also put under trusteeship. These have been filing annual reports as required by law.

A companies office spokesman said Monday the Colwood Improvement Company would be sent a formal letter requesting that the act be observed.

Refusal to co-operate could result in charges being laid.

Files in the companies office at the provincial courthouse are required to show information about companies including officers and shareholders and some basic financial facts regarding mortgages and other encumbrances.

The 1965 annual report shows Robert P. Hagen of Victoria as holding 999 of the 1,000 shares issued by the Colwood Improvement Company. The other was held by David Gardner, listed as an office manager.

His share was held by John O'Hern until 1962. O'Hern was listed as a sales manager with the company.

HAGEL GROUP

The "Hagel Group of Companies" put under trusteeship in 1970 also includes Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens Ltd. which operates Alberni Valley Memorial Gardens at Port Alberni and Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens near Nanaimo; Greencrest Memorial Gardens Ltd. of Kelowna, which operates Lakeview Memorial Park at Kelowna; and General Services (Administrative) Ltd. of Colwood.

Earlier this year the PUC awarded another Hagel Company, Island Crematoriums Ltd., the right to build and run a crematorium near Nanaimo to serve Vancouver Island north from Duncan.

Two other applicants for the crematorium licence said the company's financial record made it an unsuitable candidate to run the crematorium.

SHORTAGES

The crematorium was estimated to earn about $36,000 in profits between now and 1975. The facility now is in operation.

The PUC hasn't said what

Top Honors Shared

Skipper of the victorious Canadian crew from 415 Squadron in Summerside, P.E.I. was a former Sidney man, Capt. Ralph D. Howey.

Crews from England, New Zealand, Australia and Canada took part in the three-day exercise which was in two parts-a-night photo attack and a "free play" day, the daylight exercise receiving the most marks

A service spokesman said today cloud and overcast skies had provided challenging conditions for the daylight portion.

Canada had previously won the trophy in anti-submarine warfare in 1962 and 1965.

The Esquimalt-based submarine HMCS Rainbow, commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. Ray Hunt was the "quarry" for the competition. Rainbow's crew received a picture of the trophy for their part in the exercise.

The trophy is a silver tray, engraved with a replica of the shearwater, a bird capable of long-distance flights over the ocean. It was donated by the parents of a British air gunner who was killed while on duty with the Royal Air Force's coastal command.

It was presented to the winning crews by Air Marshall Sir Robert Craven, air officer commanding 18 Maritime Group, RAF.

Bargaining Resumes

The Hospital Employees Union and the B.C. Hospitals Association resumed bargaining in Vancouver today.

The union warned before the meeting started that its negotiating committee was prepared to walk out immediately if the B.C. Hospitals Association was not bargaining "constructively."

An official said this meant "coming to grips with monetary items without the constraint of a limit imposed by the provincial government."

Knifer Remanded

A 28-year-old man was found guilty Monday of knifing an armed forces serviceman who tried to stop a street fight last October.

Edward Simeon, 225 Quebec, found guilty by Judge E. F. N. Robinson, was remanded to Dec. 20 for sentence.

John MacManus, 22, of CFB Naden, spent 10 days in hospital with a severe knife wound in the stomach following the fight Oct. 18.

Simeon was convicted of assault causing bodily harm.

Evidence revealed that MacManus was driving his car in the 500-block Johnson Oct. 18 when he observed a fight on the sidewalk.

Several persons including Harry Beerling, 24, of 964 Abbey, were involved in the fight. McManus was trying to help Beerling when he was wounded.

Beerling died in a Saanich traffic accident within a week of the incident.

STROM DECLINES BID

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Social Credit Leader Harry Strom said today he would not consider running federally for the Progressive Conservative Party.

"I'm not interested in any way, shape or form in making any transfers, federally or provincially, to the PCs," Strom said in an interview.

He made the comment following a report from Ottawa that the Conservatives want him to run against Liberal cabinet minister H. A. (Bud) Olson in the Medicine Hat riding.

U.S. Dollar Down 7.78% Says Morgan

NEW YORK (AP) — The trade-weighted devaluation of the American dollar since abandonment of fixed parities amounts to 7.78 per cent, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. said Monday.

The bank based its calculation on foreign exchange rates at noon Monday. The figure reflects changes in the dollar's value since the Canadian dollar was floated in June, 1970, and indicates the average of changes in the dollar's value against the currency of the United States' 14 chief trading partners.

Depreciation of the dollar, by the bank's calculations, ranged from a 12.66 per cent gain on the dollar by the West German mark and a 0.42 per cent gain by the French franc.

The Canadian dollar had gained 8.03 per cent in terms of the U.S. dollar, the bank said.

Convention Hisses Right-Wing Tories

The young crowd, weary after four hours of debate in which Mr. Layton had figured prominently, groaned.

Gordon Fairweather, MP for Fundy-Royal and former attorney-general of New Brunswick, an opponent of capital punishment, coolly administered the coup-de-grace.

"It this the same man who spoke a few minutes ago, of abortion in terms of murder?"

Mr. Layton, 28, and other of the right-wing movement in the Conservative party met little more than sneers, hisses and boos during the policy convention here.

The group thinks Mr. Stanfield is "too collectivist" to be an ideal leader.

In a manifesto, the group calls itself the Committee for a New Direction.

The manifesto calls for massive cuts in government spending and lower taxes for everyone, "a return to free market principles" with far less government involvement in the economy, a balanced budget and a return to the gold standard, and abolition of medical care insurance and other social welfare plans.

As for welfare in general, there should be a return to charity. Government plans were legal plunder.

Dispute Centres On Brentwood Land

Central Saanich council argued Monday night over whether it had viewed other park sites before negotiating for a land parcel in Brentwood.

The discussion was raised by a letter sent by Mayor A. M. Galbraith to Central Saanich voters informing them of the proposed Brentwood land purchase.

DISAGREEMENT

Ald. Ted Clayards said he disagreed with the mayor's statement that prior to negotiation for the Brentwood parcel council had viewed a number of other park sites. Clayards held that negotiations had already taken place.

Ald. Percy Lazarz said he had not made up his mind until he had viewed all the properties and pointed out that ratepayers will be given an opportunity to vote on the $53,100 land purchase in a referendum Saturday.

MISLEADING

Ald. Clayards also questioned the existence of a written offer involving the Brentwood property and was told it had been read and received at a council committee meeting Nov. 8.

Ald. Don MacLaurin objected to the term "offer," saying it was misleading.

"Council was made aware that the land was available at a certain price," he said.

Mayor Galbraith observed that during council discussions he had maintained an open mind on the matter to which Clayards replied that the mayor had "sat on the fence for a long time."

"I take exception to that remark if you wish to sit at this table," said Galbraith. Clayards said he regretted the remark.

WOULD ATTEND

Later council received a letter from Dr. Jan Kupp, president of a Central Saanich ratepayers group, who said that one member would regularly attend council meetings.

Dr. Kupp said that "lack of information was most probably the cause of distrust" on the part of residents.

"If ratepayers had had a representative at all our meetings, we would have had no problems," said Ald. Ken Stanlake, referring to the Brentwood land controversy.

Action Group Grant 'At the Right Time'

A $2,000 federal government grant for the Community Action Group has come "just at the right time," group president Mrs. Susan Talbot said Monday.

Without this aid from an unexpected quarter the organization might have had to give up one of its two offices, she said.

The group has an office in the basement of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral and a second office in Spencerhouse at 1951 Cook Street.

Mrs. Talbot explained that up to now the CAG has enjoyed free use of the Spencerhouse office, but from early next year it will have to pay a $25 monthly rent.

She said two applications for federal assistance had been unsuccessful, and the announcement Monday from the Secretary of State's office was a "bolt out of the blue."

FOOD, CLOTHING

Established in January, 1969, the group aims to help the less fortunate persons in society by making available information on welfare entitlement and supplying emergency food and clothing.

It also undertakes advocacy work on behalf of potential welfare recipients and acts as a referral service to other agencies.

Mrs. Talbot said the grant will be used to further the general work of the CAG and will not be used for any specific project.

Two other Victoria groups will also receive federal money but from a different source, Victoria MP David Groos announced Monday.

nally and Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans.

If any changes were negotiated in theaut o pact, Trudeau said he did not believe they would result in the loss of any Canadian jobs.

The Trudeau-Nixon discussions also included a wide range of subjects, among them the India-Pakistan war, the Middle East situation and a short discussion on the diminishing U.S. role in Vietnam.

Other Canadian officials said Trudeau urged Nixon Monday to remove the surcharge because "it is hurting us." They said American officials told them the tax levy would be taken off as soon as possible.

CEREMONY

Ceremony amid generalities appeared dominant throughout the quick visit that had been billed in advance as a hard-working meeting that would give a top-level shove to progress in U.S.-Canada relations.

When the prime minister drove up to the White house at 4 p.m. Monday a squad of U.S. Army heralds trumpeted a fanfare titled Jubilation while an all-service guard along the driveway presented arms.

The president greeted Trudeau in the blue-and-gold Oval Office, posing for pictures and chatting about the president's forthcoming visit to the Azores, where he will meet French President Georges Pompidou, and the prime minister skiing.

At an evening dinner, which the Canadian had believed would be a working dinner, there was another fanfare on arrival, entertainment by the U.S. Marine Band and a male chorus, toasts and ministerial speeches.

If that was a working dinner, Trudeau was heard to say, let's have more of them.

SEPARATE ENTITIES

The Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Racing Association Company Ltd. which is trying to pay off debts from last summer's race meeting at Sandown Park, is a separate entity from the Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Association.

Jack Davis, a director of the non-profit association, said today the group has no connection with the limited company, although some members of the association are principals of the firm.

The association is solvent, Davis said.

ties over the Kashmir area, including six bombing raids on Srinagar Monday night and early today, the spokesman said.

Pakistan planes he said, also flew more than five sorties over Amritsar, another border town to the southwest of the Chamb region.

However, the spokesman in Rawalpindi said Pakistani forces are fighting "on Indian soil in all sectors on the western front." He said the Indians were putting up resistance in areas outside Kashmir but did not pinpoint these.

India claimed its troops had destroyed 96 Pakistani tanks on the western front.

India said it had cut all air and sea communications between the Pakistani army in East Pakistan and West Pakistan, 1,000 miles away.

An Indian military spokesman in Calcutta said Indian troops smashed their way through the defences of the important East Pakistani garrison town of Jessore today and were fighting to clear it of Pakistani troops.

"The hard outer core of Pakistan's defences in the East has been smashed, and our progress now should be much more rapid," said Maj.-Gen. F. R. Jacob, the chief of staff for India's eastern command.

Jacob said the Indians have occupied Jessore airfield and were battling to clear the army cantonment about four miles outside the town. Jessore is about 20 miles from East Pakistan's western border and is believed to be defended by about 5,000 Pakistani troops and a local militia.

Girl's Condition Remains 'Poor'

Ena Chow, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Yau Hon Chow, 974 North Park, was pulled from the pool last Tuesday during its opening week.

Legislative Post For Victorian

Alan Miles Hutchinson of Victoria has been appointed Sergeant-at-Arms for the B.C. legislature by the provincial cabinet.

He succeeds Denzil G. Ashby, provincial court judge at Sidney who has held the position since 1957. Hutchinson was Deputy Sergeant-at-arms. Salary for the new job is $1,000 a year.

Fire Alarm Saved 11

Constable Len Reid and cabbie Allan Kelly, 1400 Newport, spotted the blaze at 1569 Foul Bay about 3:25 a.m. and helped William MacFarlane, his wife and nine children from the house.

When fire trucks from Oak Bay and the city arrived flames had eaten through the roof of the building. Two Oak Bay trucks spent 3¼ hours at the scene.

An Oak Bay fire spokesman said officials believe the blaze was caused by overheated beams and studs near a fireplace that had been burning for three days.

The home is owned by Jack Paxton, 1536 Arrow.

But the following sentence appeared in the commission's annual report for 1969:

"The Commission noted that deposits due to the care funds of Colwood Cemetery Company, Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens Ltd. and Greencrest Memorial Gardens Ltd. of approximately $42,000 was being hampered due to a poor revenue situation."

The report goes on to say that as a result, "a temporary waiver" of regulations under the Cemeteries Act was being granted.

MONTHLY SUM

From Aug. 1, 1969, the companies were required to deposit "not less than 20 per cent of the calculated monthly sum properly due to the care funds for their cemeteries."

The waiver, which freed the company from payment of 80 per cent of its care fund quotas, was continued in 1970.

The Cemeteries Act regulations specify that a set percentage of all revenue from sales of cemetery plots must be placed in trust funds to provide for perpetual maintenance of the cemeteries. The percentage varies for different cemeteries but ranges from 20 per cent to 25 per cent in most cases.

The PUC's 1968 annual report shows that "a continuing study" of the care funds of the Hagel group was under way then.

YEAR LATER

A supervisor was appointed by the company in May, 1969, prior to the placing of the companies under a full-fledged trustee-administrator almost a year later.

The 1969 annual report of the PUC makes a number of references to the Hagel companies.

"At Cedar Valley Memorial Cemetery, Nanaimo, the commission found that an area which has not been approved for use and which was owned personally by the cemetery owner had been established as part of Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens.

"Grave space has been sold and burials made in the area."

The commission report said it was investigating and a restriction had been placed on transfer or sale of the land.

SAME YEAR

Also in the same year, the commission rejected a proposal from Greencrest Memorial Gardens Ltd. of Kelowna to transfer one acre of cemetery land to the superintendent of the cemetery. The reasons for the transfer were described as "not acceptable" to the PUC.

The same year's report also said the commission had "great difficulty" in getting the owners of the Alberni Valley, Cedar Valley and Greencrest cemeteries to fill out a form properly showing rates charged.

The report also shows the commission allowed the Colwood, Alberni and Kelowna cemeteries to use income from the care funds for maintenance sooner than would have otherwise been possible under the Cemeteries Act regulations.

Dr. Neil Perry Off to Ceylon

Dr. G. Neil Perry, former deputy education minister for British Columbia from 1965 to 1970, has been chosen to head a United Nations review group which will visit Ceylon later this month.

The international team will report on the work of the UN development mission in Ceylon.

ECONOMICS

Born in Victoria in 1909, he was educated at Victoria high school, Victoria College and the University of British Columbia where he obtained his bachelor of arts degree with honors in economics.

Perry was secretary of the B.C. Economic Council before the Second World War and later became director of the Bureau of Economics and Statistics. He was conultant to the B.C. Post-War Regional Council and economic adviser on Dominion-provincial relations at the time of the 1947 tax-rental agreement.

Leter he held senior positions with the federal finance department, the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

From 1954 to 1956 he was economic adviser to the finance minister in Ethiopia and governor of the state bank of Ethiopia.

He joined UBC in 1960 as dean of the faculty of commerce and business administration and became the university's vice-president in 1963.

Consultant Joins Industry Department

A former vice-president of Eurocan Pulp and Paper Ltd. at Kitimat, has been named management consultant to the provincial department of industrial development, trade and commerce.

Leslie C. Hempsall, 50, will be paid $2,040 a month in the new job. He will assist in reorganization of the department. He began work Monday.

Industry Minister Waldo Skillings said it will be some time before a deputy minister is appointed to replace Robert F. Renwick, who left the department last month to return to the federal civil service.

Skillings said he thought "this might be an appropriate time to take a good look at our departmental structure to see if any improvements can be made."

Renwick is still officially listed as deputy minister of the department and is expected to remain so until mid-January when he reaches age 55. Maintenance of pension portability is understood to be the reason.

Drug Cost $250 Fine

Andre Joseph Aucoin, 20, of CFB Esquimalt, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty Saturday to possession of MDA. Court was told that three capsules of the substance were found when the accused was checked at the base Friday night after he had been followed from a Victoria address.

Clear skies over much of the province overnight allowed temperatures to fall below freezing along the south coast and to near zero or below over the interior of the province. The exception was the northern B.C. coast where milder air associated with an advancing Pacific storm held temperatures into the high thirties and low forties. Rain from this system will spread slowly down the north coast today and give snow to the central interior with rain to the south coast on Wednesday.

Wednesday Launch For New Library

The sod-turning ceremony for the joint Victoria-Saanich Centennial branch library will be held Wednesday, "to ensure work gets under way before Centennial year is out," Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said Monday night.

Curtis made the announcement after Saanich council awarded the contract for the building to Farmer Construction Ltd., which submitted the lowest tender of $186,372 from seven bids received.

Curtis said the figure was below the original estimate for the project submitted by the architect, something which happened all too rarely.

To Col. Alfred Hood, chairman of the Greater Victoria Library Board, who was present as an observer, he said: "I would like to congratulate you and your board on getting this building in under price."

The new branch library will be located on Seymour Avenue, immediately behind the Town and Country shopping centre.

'DELIGHTED'

With an area of about 10,000 square feet, it will be nearly three times the size of the present small library in the shopping centre itself.

Hood said in an interview after the council meeting he was "absolutely delighted" at the low tender accepted, enabling an immediate start on construction.

"I think this is going to make a very definite and valuable contribution to the library services in Greater Victoria," he said.

The new building is expected to be completed by the end of March, 1972, Hood said.

SCORES DOUBLE

Farmer Construction scored a double Monday night, for beside being awarded the library contract the company was also the successful bidder on a project to extend the municipality's sewer system in the area north of Carey Road, south of Agnes Street and west of Douglas Street.

One of the six bidders, the firm submitted a tender for $154,275, which acting engineer John Cowlin said was below his department's own estimate for the job.

The other tenders ranged up to a high of $199,075.

WHO WILL CARE FOR EXTRA CATS?

Esquimalt municipality's bid to control its feline population went one more step toward becoming law Monday night, in spite of an emotional plea from the Cats' Protection League Incorporated to scrap the whole idea.

Aldermen approved a resolution to amend the Animal Control Bylaw to restrict the number of cats in any household to five and to require anyone owning more than five cats at the time of passage of the bylaw to register the number with municipal officials.

"How are you, the council, who represent the bylaws you pass, going to cope?" Asked Miss Joann Hartsook, corresponding secretary of the Cat Protection League, in a letter. "Are you going to have the abandoned cats we mention (earlier she asked about the kindly person who gives a home to unwanted cats) shot to death, or box-trapped and gassed? There will be much anger and agitation if the surplus animals are rounded up and so disposed of," she warned.

"The natural process of uncontrolled breeding will get worse and worse. The slaughter will go on because of spiteful neighbors."

Esquimalt Council Blocks Medical Centre Bid

Esquimalt aldermen Monday blocked an attempt by Ald. Kenneth Hill to gain approval in principle for construction of a health centre in the municipality in 1972.

Hill, the municipality's representative on the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health, sought an immediate approval for the project because he told council, funds from the senior levels of government are available at present, but would not be in the 1972-1973 fiscal year.

He said a construction start would have to be made before the end of March, 1972, to take advantage of available funds.

Aldermen were generally opposed to a rush approval before all facts concerning such a centre are available, and questioned the need for it at present.

Persons requiring the services of the health centre now attend at the office on Cook Street.

Mayor Art Young voiced his opposition to the bid, saying "Not one resident of Esquimalt has ever tapped me on the shoulder and said we need a health centre."

"When the need comes," Ald. Art Cuthbert said, "people will ask for it."

Hill, who told council he has already questioned an architect on the building which would be required, said it would cost $100,000 of which the two senior governments would each pay a maximum of $35,000.

In other business, council:

- Approved payment of a bonus for Christmas to welfare recipients in the municipality, on a sliding scale based on the number of persons in the family unit. A family of three will be paid a bonus of $2 in addition to the provincial bonus of $10. An additional $4 will be added for each following member of the family unit.
- Set a public hearing for Dec. 20 at 7 p.m. on three amendments to the zoning bylaw. Extensive amendments to the section of the bylaw concerning home occupations were considered and returned for further committee study and consultation with solicitors.
- Referred to its public works sub-committee a recommendation for the widening of Viewfield Rd. at an approximate cost of $3,500.

DOLL HOUSE HEARING SET

A public hearing will be held in Saanich on an application to allow a house in a residential area to be used for selling dolls and handicrafts.

The decision was taken by Saanich council Monday night, despite objections from three aldermen that the application from Allan Heard, 1620 North Dairy Road, was seeking to establish an undesirable zoning precedent.

Voting was 5 to 3 in favor of putting the application to a public hearing, with aldermen Frank Waring, Leslie Passmore and William Campbell opposing the move.

At a meeting last month when the application first came before council, the municipal planner was asked to submit a report on the possibility of creating a special zoning classification to cover cottage industry and handicrafts activities.

MORE ZONING

Planner Tom Loney said in the report Monday night this step could be taken, but added the opinion that it would really amount to just another type of commercial zoning.

The practical effect of such a commercial activity would be similar to that of a large firm, Loney noted, and traffic would increase in the area as a result.

On the specific application, he recommended rejection as it represented spot zoning and a commercial intrusion into an area zoned as residential.

In the ensuing discussion Mayor Hugh Curtis sided with those who thought such activities could be pursued in Saanich without prejudicing the municipality's zoning policies.

"It seems to me this is the kind of small business which too often finds the door shut to it," he said.

Ald. Alan Newberry also favored taking a sympathetic view of the case, and Ald. Edith Gunning remarked that she would have liked a more precise definition of what constitutes a cottage industry.

Council approved her motion that the possibility of creating a special zoning category to cover this field should be examined by the planning committee.

Does a Statistical Earl Make a Better Count?

ALNWICK, England — Britain has a new Earl of Tankerville: Charles Augustus Grey, 50, of San Francisco, where he works as a statistician.

Grey's father, the eighth earl, died last week at 71.

The family seat is at Chillingham in Northumberland, 15 miles south of Berwick on the border between England and Scotland. Chillingham is famous for its herd of wild white cattle, which have roamed its 365-acre park for 700 years.

The new earl inherits Chillingham Castle, which dates to the 11th century, but the eighth earl handed over custody of the cattle to an association, to ensure continuation of the herd and avoid death duties.

SEDALIA, Mo. — Millions of Americans remember the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor 30 years ago today, but perhaps none more vividly than Mrs. Earlie Whiteman.

The eldest of Mrs. Whiteman's eight sons, Lt. George Whiteman, 22, died in the cockpit of his plane at the end of a pearl harbor runway, the first U.S. airman to die in World War II, according to air force records.

"He was the first of my boys to die," Mrs. Whiteman said. "Now there are only four left. Marshall was killed in Korea in 1953. And then there was John who was in Korea, too. He came home all right but later died and I always thought the awful cold and exposure in Korea had something to do with it."

TUCSON, Arix — The New York Times was named recipient Monday of the 1971 John Peter Zenger Award for its publication of the Pentagon Papers.

The announcement marked the first time in the award's 18-year history that it went to an organization rather than to an individual.

The Zenger award, presented annually by the University of Arizona, is given "for distinguished service to freedom of the press and the people's right to know."

The award is named for John Peter Zenger, 18th-century editor who was acquitted of libelling the British governor of New York.

MONTREAL — Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette's car was stolen, heavily damaged and then abandoned in suburban Verdun during the weekend, a provincial police spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the 1971 Oldsmobile was first noticed missing Sunday morning by a provincial police constable who acts as Choquette's chauffeur when the justice minister is in Montreal.

OTTAWA — Communications Minister Robert Stanbury today made the first direct Canadian phone call to the People's Republic of China.

Stanbury spoke to his Chinese counterpart Chung Fu-hsiang, the director of the general administration for communications, through an interpreter.

Questions to Be Answered

The mayoral race in Victoria has achieved in its final days a degree of warmth, in contrast to the still cool aldermanic contest. Inevitably, personal criticisms are creeping into the candidates' presentations, and while this adds little to a contest which surely has a plentiful supply of important issues in which the public is more interested, it may stir some habitual non-voters to get out to the polls.

There is still a reluctance in some city candidates for either office to give clear-cut answers to specific questions. Some of the issues have been hotly debated before the public for months, even years, and any person who seeks civic office in this situation should have his or her personal answers sorted out by now. Anyone who takes refuge in generalized claims to answer these questions by "acting for the public good", or "using the best judgment possible", or giving them "attentive study" is merely evading an honest stand in hopes of offending as few voters as possible.

If a candidate has not got these matters settled in his own mind by now, he is not likely to hold an opinion that is worth much after he is elected. Without defensible opinions on basic local topics, what can a candidate possibly hope to contribute to the governance of the city? Now is the time to pin candidates down, not after election has placed them beyond reach for two years. Some city candidates are facing up to these issues, others are weakly evasive.

What voters are interested in this time round are such topics as: over-all planning for the city and determination of its eventual role and community personality; policy on high-rises and appropriate sites; development of the Inner Harbor area; future of the Old Town concept; disposition of the Thetis Lake property and willingness to safeguard it through dedication and regionalization; position on pollution control and sewage treatment; policies on future traffic planning and downtown environment (malls, parking, bus service, etc.); an industrial base for the city's economy or what alternative; attitude toward intermunicipal amalgamation.

There are other issues. But every candidate should know now how he or she is going to vote on these questions when called upon, and should tell the voters exactly what to expect.

The same principle holds in the other municipalities, although the issues there are in general not so pressing or so numerous. Victoria is now at a crucial point of growth. It needs strong, informed and able leadership from its elected representatives. The public can make its choice of candidates only on the basis of what they are, what they say and what they have done. There are three days left.

Dr. Castro Goes A-Visiting

The recently concluded visit of Premier Fidel Castro to Chile and his apparently warm welcome in that country may be a sign of the growing acceptance of the Cuban leader in Latin America. Indications are that Dr. Castro has toned down his efforts to export revolution as a result of strong urging by his Soviet sponsors. Russia's interests in Latin America are in a peaceful phase, emphasizing increased trade and better diplomatic relations.

The failure of the Cuban sugar crop in 1970 to come up to planned production brought home to leadership and peasantry the fragile nature of Cuba's economy. Cuba's debt, at $3 billions, exceeds her annual gross national product and means that the country is heavily mortgaged to the Soviet Union, from which it receives vast quantities of aid and purchase orders for sugar at prices above the international market.

The Communist regime, or at least Dr. Castro, is still popular in the island nation and his trip abroad may symbolize his confidence in the regime's staying power.

There are, however, no signs yet that the United States is warming to Havana. Relations are characterized by intermittent warnings about Soviet submarine activity around Cuba. This is unfortunate, for if Washington's objective is to encourage Titoist tendencies in the Communist world the time is advantageous for adoption of such a policy towards the strategic island in the Caribbean.

The Amalgamation Trend

As this community moves toward its civic elections, amalgamation has been a relatively secondary theme for various candidates — some for, some against. The move to consolidation, however, continues to gain strength, as recently shown in Winnipeg's decision.

Portland, Oregon, is a Pacific Coast centre considering consolidation. It is of a nature differing in some respects from any proposed in Canada, but following a parallel course. The objective is to combine the city of Portland with the metropolitan county of Multnomah, merging the various local governments into one. Similar consolidations have already occurred in San Francisco, Indianapolis, Seattle and Jacksonville, Fla.

Details may differ in the various instances, but the purpose appears the same — to combine in one over-all responsible local government the smaller entities within the general area. The concept, at least half a century old in Greater Victoria and still unrealized here, shows up as a normal process of evolution in the continual urbanization of North American society.

Quebec's Battle for Control

MONTREAL: After months of behind-the-scenes arguing over who controls the vast and growing communications field, Quebec and Ottawa may be headed towards one of their most bitter conflicts since Premier Robert Bourassa was elected 19 months ago.

The dispute could come to a head during the next few weeks, when the national assembly is expected to give final reading to a bill claiming control over cable television for Quebec.

Since the federal government is already licensing and controlling cable TV firms through the Canadian Radio-Television Commission — an open battle seems inevitable if Quebec attempts to implement its legislation.

The federal government is maintaining a wait-and-see attitude, suggesting that Quebec may shelve the bill once it is passed and keep it as a weapon for future negotiations with Ottawa on other issues.

If it doesn't, the issue seems destined for the courts — and the bitterness that would accompany the first federal attempt to have a bill passed by the Bourassa government declared unconstitutional.

Negotiation Refused

Quebec Communications Minister Jean-Paul L'Allier, the man who has guided the contentious cable TV bill through two readings in the national assembly, says that the federal government has refused to negotiate.

Quebec, in turn, has ignored Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier's suggestion that the province seek a ruling from the Supreme Court. If anyone questions the constitutionality of the Quebec legislation, says Mr. L'Allier, it will be Ottawa.

The storm clouds began forming last spring, when the provincial communications minister announced plans to seek jurisdiction eventually over a wide range of modern communications, including — besides cable TV — telecommunications and those Quebec telephone companies which are federally regulated.

In addition, Mr. L'Allier announced that Quebec might shortly begin construction of an ultra-high-frequency television station to carry educational programs without first seeking a federal licence. He also said that he would like some say over the program content of very-high-frequency TV stations run by the CBC and private companies.

open battle . . .

Quebec claims that the communications field — the potential of which is still unclear — is intimately linked with culture and education, over which the provinces have unquestionable jurisdiction under the British North America Act.

The differing Ottawa viewpoint is that cable TV is an integral part of the over-all broadcasting system, over which the federal government has jurisdiction.

More specifically, Ottawa seems to be afraid of the "cultural" effect of provincially-controlled television, especially in Quebec.

"To Balkanize communications is to threaten the community itself," said Mr. Pelletier last spring when Quebec's demands were made public.

Mr. L'Allier claims that it is the Quebec "community" which is threatened, because there is currently no way for the residents of the Gaspe' Peninsula to know "what's going on in Lac St. Jean and the people of the North Shore rarely hear what's going on in Hull."

The provincial communications minister has been asking Ottawa to negotiate because he apparently feels he could get more at the bargaining table than in court, where such intangible questions as the cultural aspirations of French Canadians wouldn't be considered.

Nationalization Plan

If Mr. L'Allier wins his jurisdictional battle with Ottawa, he hopes eventually to nationalize the 250 cable TV companies licensed to operate in Quebec.

Already, the Quebec government holds 30 percent of the shares of a Montreal cable TV firm which serves 90,000 Montreal homes and has a potential of reaching some 450,000.

Quebec got around the restriction that provincial governments can't get into the cable TV business by having its Quebec Deposit and Investment Fund — which invests Quebec pension plan contributions — put up the money in an arrangement with several insurance companies.

Although members of the Parti Quebecois support his claims for increased jurisdiction, they have expressed fears that the communication department could easily become a propaganda ministry.

One French Canadian newsman wryly summarized their feelings recently when he said: "Wait a few years. We might be able to watch the news . . . read by Jean-Paul L'Allier.

MAURICE WESTERN

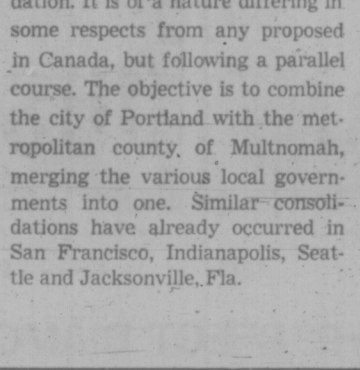
OTTAWA— The immigration statistics, at first glance, suggest a paradox. On the one hand, immigration is dropping steadily. On the other, the backlog of appeals to the immigration appeal board is rising at a frightening rate.

It is usual to attribute the decline to employment conditions in Canada and improved conditions in the traditional supplying countries. In fact it has been quite steady since the peak of 222,867 newcomers recorded in 1967. An important cause presumably is the integration of immigration and manpower policy which would naturally mean the subordination of the former to the latter.

But the appeal board is being swamped with cases. The situation was completely out of hand more than a year ago when a report on the subject by Joseph Sedgwick, noted Ontario legal authority, was tabled in the House of Commons. At that time the backlog was about 4,000 with new cases coming in at the rate of about 400 a month. The appeal board can handle about 1,200 a year. Things have not improved; they have grown worse. The backlog, at latest report, was 7,443 (Oct. 31, 1971).

Mr. Sedgwick had no doubt as to the nature of the problem. It has been created by wholesale evasion of the normal immigration procedures. If a person applies to Canadian officials abroad and is turned down, that is the end of the matter. But he may, instead, come to Canada as a visitor; then apply for landed immigrant status. In that event he has rights of appeal against an adverse decision; rights which may in practice permit him to stay here for a long time. Evidently this has become, for many persons, a preferred mode of entry.

Persons applying inside Canada may take their cases to a special inquiry officer, then go on to the appeal board, and beyond that to the Supreme Court. When Mr. Sedgwick reported, the whole system was choked. He found that, in Toronto, in August of last year, 1,805 cases were pending, with 300 coming in each month and the special inquiry officers struggling to handle 15 a month.



JED BALDWIN
smugglers' depot . . .

The practical consequence was that an application might not even be examined for seven months; if appealed it might not reach the board for three or four years after that.

Even this may be an understatement. Work permits are commonly issued to persons who have passed the special inquiry stage and are awaiting the outcome of appeals. David Orlikow complained last March that some could not obtain permits because they had not reached that stage although they had been in Canada for 12 months.

Not long after the Sedgwick report appeared, Otto Lang, the minister of manpower, described the specific recommendations for limiting rights of appeal and "our own decision" as of "urgent importance." It is believed that this is still his view. The urgency may, however, be less apparent to some of his colleagues. A year has passed and the amending legislation is not as yet even on the order paper. Allan MacEachern, government House Leader, replying recently to Jed. Baldwin, Conservative House Leader, hinted that it might appear before the end of the session but discussion will be deferred until next year.

The situation is particularly disturbing because of its implications for security. Some doubts on this score were expressed, by Mr. Baldwin among others, when the present legislation was passed in 1967. At the time, these were more or less brushed aside because it was expected that the royal commission on security would have specific recommendations on that score. So it did, in June, 1969, but nothing as yet has been done about them.

The arrangements for screening, as described by the commissioners, seem very loose. Sponsored dependents, it was found, are normally not themselves the subjects of security examinations. Instead, it is the sponsor who is checked against subversive records in Ottawa. However, there is full screening of independent applicants.

It appears, nevertheless, that responsibility is generally confined in these cases to officials of the manpower department. In sensitive or contentious cases, the department may, at its discretion, make a reference to an ad hoc inter-departmental committee.

But the usual procedure, as described, does not seem to involve the department of the solicitor general, who is responsible for the RCMP. Indeed, in a later paragraph, the reports says:

"We have noted that the final decision to admit or reject a prospective immigrant rests with the department of manpower and immigration even where an objection has been raised on security grounds. We recognize the ultimate responsibility of the department for the acceptance or rejection of immigrants, but we feel that the department's responsibility in the area of security is analogous to that exercised by all departments for their own security. In particular the significance to be attached to an adverse security report would be best evaluated in conjunction with specialists in security."

Why the Recommendations?

Evidently it is not so evaluated, else why the recommendations?

The royal commission urged that a decision on security cases be taken by a security review board and that jurisdiction in this field be taken away from the immigration appeal board. Mr. Sedgwick concurred, suggesting that the proposed new board, given the nature of its work, should sit in Canada. At that time, Mr. Lang was quoted to the effect that the recommendation made sense to him.

According to the best advice we have, the security threat remains serious despite political changes in the world. In one respect it may be worse for extremist groups in various parts of the world have been turning increasingly to tactics of violence, and terrorist organizations, such as the FLQ, have operated on our own soil. But control must necessarily be difficult when deportation can be resisted over such long periods of time. Under the 1968 law, with its dangerous loopholes, there have been 10,441 deportation appeals in four years and the rate has been increasing almost in geometric progression.

But the security risk is only a small part of the story.

The system, as it presently exists, is an open invitation to the racketeers who have always preyed on immigrants. There are comparatively legal ways (legal at least in overseas countries) of organizing indentured labor operations. But the illegals who come as visitors, fail in their applications and then attempt to stay or simply disappear, are wide open to victimization both by agents of the rings and unscrupulous employers obtaining kickbacks from minimum wages.

Other possibilities are suggested in a question asked recently by Mr. Baldwin. "Is the government aware that Canada is being used as a depot or staging point in connection with large scale illicit traffic in smuggling aliens into the United States through Canada and is any action being taken in this regard?"

If this is so (and there is certainly precedent for it), no one should be particularly surprised. Plainly the intent of Parliament is being circumvented when 65 per cent of "visitors" who are denied landed status, remain in Canada to exhaust their rights of appeal. At the rate at which the situation is worsening, the government will probably be forced into another wholesale amnesty, as has happened three times before. Indeed, a partial measure of this type was urged by Mr. Sedgwick, who recommended last year that the board review all pending appeals and grant clearance to all who would probably succeed either on compassionate or on humanitarian grounds.

It is unfortunate that Parliament has been unable to tackle problems of admitted urgency (if the cabinet, as some doubt, is of one mind about them) because its time has been wholly occupied with other matters.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Dec. 7, 1911:

DELHI — The roar of an Imperial salute of 101 guns welcomed the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress on their arrival here today from Bombay. The railroad station in the Selingarh bastion of the fort had been the mecca since dawn for everybody in the city and the coronation camp.

The route to the camp was lined alternately by British and Indian regiments, under command of Lieut-General Sir J. Willcocks and General Sir E. G. Barrow. In providing guards of honor and escorts, native troops were given an equal share with British soldiers.

That Leak—From the PM's Office, Perhaps?

By DALTON CAMP

Abe Rotstein is a pleasant, patient and intelligent man, and he puts out the Canadian Forum, a publication which demands those qualities of editorship. Apart from the odd callow essay from the Erindale history department, there is a lot of good stuff in the Forum.

So it was capital fun that the good, grey Forum should have scooped the world in publishing a version of the Gray Report (so-called) on foreign ownership, and there was Abe Rotstein, beaming with pride, on the front pages, there was the rest of the media pack tally-hoing behind, and there was the government, seeming surprised.

What interests one about it is whether the version published in the Forum bears any resemblance to the document written originally by Herb Gray's task force, or whether it bears the thumb-print of those members in the prime minister's office, who took the original version under their care and control some time ago, on or before May, 1971.

There are clues to suggest the unspeakable; that the report was leaked from the PMO (Prime Minister's Office). For example, reference is made to a remark by J. K. Galbraith, uttered to a Canadian audience, the sense of which was that we were wasting out time fretting about foreign ownership of the economy, and we would do better to fret about our cultural independence, a remark, need I say, which the economic nationalists found unexceptional for one of Professor Galbraith's towering intellect.

Anyway, Galbraith gave his advice sometime in the month of October, so, if you follow me, someone was still tinkering with the text as of that time. Well, bearing in mind that Mr. Gray's original report was finished by last May, and suspecting that he has not likely seen it since, the conclusion must be, Dr. Watson, that the revised, cleaned-up version, prepared by the PMO, was also leaked by the PMO.

But of course!

There are, as we know, two kinds of leaks. The first is a natural one, caused by a puncture in the lines of communication. Still, a document as weighty as the Gray Report, tucked away in the PMO, is a hard thing to leak . . . unless, unless . . . it was that other kind of leak, the controlled leak.

There is a passion for secrecy in the PMO only somewhat less than that of the office of Howard Hughes. It is inconceivable, then, that anything would leak from the PMO unless it was deliberate. One can only stand in admiring awe of the decision to leak the Gray Report to Abe Rotstein and the Canadian Forum.

About now, I suspect, the question occurs as to why it was leaked at all. Why not a news conference, press briefing, a prime ministerial kind of proclamation of the Gray Report?

Bear in mind, the project was launched in 1969, in the afterglow of the Trudeau sweep, long before our relations with the United States had gone sour, and when the academic community still thought Mr. Trudeau saw things their way.

Never mind that Professor Watkins had only recently gone the same route for Mr. Pearson and Walter Gordon, producing a report on economic nationalism so embarrassing in its ideological passion that Mr. Pearson literally leaked it to Parliament. What this report had, which Professor Watkins' more primitive attempt lacked, was Prime Ministerial sponsorship, and a cabinet minister overseer, in the person of Herb Gray.

For two years, the world waited. Parliamentarians, lacking substance for a day's questioning, prodded the government for news of progress. The answer was that it was under way, or nearing completion, or coming soon, like "Son of Lassie" at your neighborhood theatre.

It now appears — or at least it does to me — that once the Gray Report was received in the PMO, somebody wondered, for the first time, what could be done with it. As with the effort of Professor Watkins, the thoughts were noble, the language suitably effulgent, but the difficulty remained — if the Trudeau Government formally tabled the report, what, pray, would the Trudeau Government then do about it?

The problems of foreign ownership are many and complex, proposed solutions lacerate party lines, alienate campaign support, dismay some as they please others.

As an election issue, in a sagging economy, it is a horror. Ask Bob Nixon, the Ontario Liberal leader; better still, enquire of Stephen Lewis, the NDP leader of the same address. No, it is not an issue to be grasped like the nettle, on the eve of an election, and with the economy troubled by uncertainty and chronic mismanagement.

And so, someone in the PMO reckoned, there was but one solution — leak the damn thing. Let the press ponder it, have the professors debate it, and see what the people make of it. Then — most perfect of all perfect worlds — you have the Gray Report off the government's back by the simple device of leaking the report, which is then officially described as an unofficial version, but because of its improprietous leak, precludes there being a need for an official version.

All in all, a masterful stroke of political strategy, if in a narrow sense, and an example of new management worthy of W. L. Mackenzie King, whose like we thought we would never see again, but are seeing now.

A Clash of Reason and Emotion

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — it is a curious experience rereading E. M. Forster's "A Room With A View" in Africa. How remote it all seems in time and place and manner — the Edwardian English ladies seeing Florence, the curates, the English suburbs, the little social ripples. But it connects.

Forster's concern, as always really, was the undeveloped heart. His heroine, Lucy Honeychurch, is surrounded by characters who fear emotion and make her suppress it: her minister, her chaperoning cousin, her stick-like fiance. Even her playing of Beethoven worries them with its passion. But in the end, the happy end, she breaks out and admits to herself that she loves a socially unsuitable young man. She is saved.

It has always been something of a mystery that Forster understood so well the cost to the human character of fearing passion. He had quite a cloistered life himself to physical love, as it happens homosexual. But he knew that people are not whole when they deny their emotions, and that is what connects here and now.

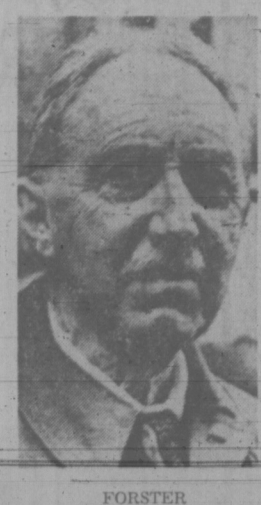
The Puritan strain in European civilization somehow stands out, revealed, when surrounded by an alien culture. To see African men walk along the street holding hands because they are brothers or cousins is to recognize for a moment how much feeling we suppress.

Seige Psychology

In Southern Africa, white societies seem impelled to tighter and tighter restraints on themselves, perhaps as part of a siege psychology. The censorship boards in South Africa and Rhodesia exclude works not only on political but on moral grounds. You cannot bring a phonograph record of "Hair" into Rhodesia.

E. M. Forster indeed applied his theme of the undeveloped heart to a colonial situation. That was "A Passage to India," one of the few novels that can be said to have had a profound political effect. It made the English feel guilty about colonialism and, thus helped to bring on independence for India and other dependencies.

One contemporary writer has specifically considered the role of the divided human self, the clash between reason and emotion, in race relations. That is Laurens van der Post, the South African writer.



FORSTER
. . . knew the cost

Van der Post argues that white men's fear and oppression of darker people reflects the repression of something inside themselves — the instinctive, the emotional, the dark Freudian unconscious. "We hate the native in ourselves," he writes. "We scorn and despise the night in which we have our being."

In "Venture to the Interior" in 1952 van der Post told what was on the surface a story of exploration and tragedy in remote mountainous areas of what is now Malawi. But he used "interior" in two senses: he was exploring himself as well as the mountains.

Along the way he mused on the limits of reason. In the last century and a half, he said, we have "talked more about reason" than ever before. But what is the result?

"Cumulatively and collectively, in the grand total of all our individual lives, we have produced more unreason, bigger and fiercer wars, than any other age in history . . .

"Has there ever been an age that has done worse things than this one, with its class hatreds, race hatreds, color prejudices, world wars and concentration camps? Has there been another age that knowing so clearly the right things to do, has so consistently done the wrong ones?"

Cost of Hate

His unhappy observation is certainly no less true now than when he wrote, 20 years ago. Since then, to give just a few examples, the world has seen the cost of hate and fear along lines of race and religion in Cyprus, Nigeria, Ireland and the Indian subcontinent.

As those examples indicate, violent expression of racial feelings is hardly a monopoly of white men. Nor is van der Post so foolish as to suggest that. He had personal cause not to. He was in a Japanese prison camp during the Second World War and he has said that he saw on the faces of the brutal prison guards an expression that he finally recognized as similar to some he had seen on his fellow South Africans: In tormenting or killing others they were trying to kill something in themselves.

Race is too complicated a subject for any amateur to try to understand it through a single theory. But the Forsterian insight does give us some of the truth about life in Southern Africa: so long as men suppress part of themselves, they will be less than human. Or turned about: so long as they diminish the humanity of others, they will be diminished themelves. they will be less than whole.

A Message From The Colonel

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

One of the popular misconceptions of our time is that of the head of a corporation as a remote, austere man, a man so absorbed in the making of money that he does not give a fig for culture.

Lt.-Col. C. R. B. Salmon, as president of Odeon Ltd., does give a fig. Or is it a fig leaf? Anyway, the culture-conscious citizen may judge for himself on the basis of the appeal to the finer side of our nature made by the Odeon Coronet theatre on Yonge Street.

The Coronet's fearless examination of contemporary social issues and gracious practice of the cinematic arts is clothed in the following words:

"Two unbelievable, sex-filled orgies illuminate our screen in passionate color: Without a Stitch and Making of a Lady."

Diary of a Martian Male

By ALAN BRIEN
New Statesman

This morning, like any morning, I awoke at the first sound of the children squabbling, and got up to make the family breakfast. She was still lying there, snoring with her mouth open, taking up two thirds of the bed with her great, sprawling, feminine limbs.

A spasm of resentment crossed my mind, quickly suppressed as unworthy of the gentler sex. After all, she had been out on the town with the girls last night, and she needs her sleep for the heavy responsible day ahead.

I picked up her sweaty tights, crumpled blouse and muddied skirt from the floor where she had thrown them as she staggered to bed. I do like a womanly woman who knows she's the bossess in her own house.

What did it matter if she had not yet got round to mending the lavatory cistern, putting out the garbage and speaking to the landladies about there being no hot water for the fourth day?

The children, as usual, took little notice of my baritone wheedlings, knowing that the paternal instinct built into all real men would prevent me doing more than threatening to tap their wrists.

I wish their mother would discipline them more often, You should see the way they jump at her soprano grunts when she is interrupted while reading the sports pages or the financial sections of the paper. Sometimes I think she is too firm with our daughter though the two boys can twist her round their ring fingers.

As usual too, the boys had made their beds and folded their night-clothes and were already setting the table. My daughter, of course, had wet her bed, kicked her football through the transom, and was insisting on eating her cereal with boxing gloves on.

She'll be a real handful for some poor house-husband to cope with some day — but then I wouldn't want her to grow up a nancy-girl, would I?

My wife came down late, with a sore head and a scowl, demanding to know where I had hidden her bra and whether she was supposed to wear the same panties for a fortnight. The bra was in the bra drawer, naturally, and fresh panties were laid, as always, with the rest of her clothes. But I didn't say anything — it is so easy for a man to sound nagging and niggling. After all, she is the bread-winner.

At last she left, after the ritual hunt for handbag and the familiar accusation that I had lost her car keys, and I could finish the housework. The father is the nest-builder, as we all know, and you capnot imagine a mother wanting to waste her intellect and enterprise washing up in an apron.

Then, five minutes with the newspaper — she always leaves me the tabloid with the largest headlines and the biggest pictures. Though no fanatic for Men's Lib (what is the point of burning your jock-strap?). I cannot resist a secret pleasure at seeing that more and more men are making news.

There'll be a man soon on the Stock Exchange, so long as he agrees to leave the premises to use the lavatory, and doesn't try to join in the dirty-joke sessions. And an attractive male jockey, with blue eyes and blond hair, father of two, wants to ride in the Grand National.

And there is a long interview with a gentleman scientist who says that experimenting on rats has not damaged his essential masculinity and that he still bakes a beautiful fairy-cake and enjoys being whistled after by crude, vulgar girl labourers when he walks down the street.

But perhaps I should change papers. I mean, there is not much excitement for me in all these beef-cake photographs of half-naked male starlets dipping a toe in the canal. They all seem such exaggerated types, almost as big as a woman some of them.

I'm rather petit myself, with small, nicely-formed biceps, and only a trace of five-o'clock shadow. My wife says that is her ideal, but I can't help noticing her eyes do linger on pin-ups of gross men with beards and beer bellies.

Now, it is time to be off to work for me too. I am a modern man, with a degree (rather better than hers if the truth were told) and I could not exist without a job to occupy my mind, though of course I only earn pin money.

But I am at least confidential secretary to the womanaging directoress, and I get quite a kick out of knowing that two women are lower in the hierarchy than me.

Men can never expect to compete on equal terms though — I remember our careers master at school explaining that one of us might be lucky enough to rise to personal assistant to Madame President. And after all, even she has to marry some man, doesn't she?

The day at the office went well and I think I have my employeress's complete trust now. At first, she was worried to hear that I was married and might have to leave to look after the children. But now she knows that some men, at least, can run a home and a job, though she little guesses how much of my office time is sometimes spent worrying about how the kids are getting on at school, whether there is enough for supper in the fridge and if I can get to the launderette in my lunch hour.

I must say my bossess, unlike some I have heard about, always behaves like a perfect lady. I have never caught her looking up my trouser leg and even if she does occasionally give me a playful slap as I bend over a filing cabinet, it is all in fun.

We do have office Messalinas. One in particular who thinks it tremendously funny to creep up behind me and lift me in the air with her powerful hands saying "Who's a handsome little boy then?"

Once, at the Christmas party, two of the older women cornered me and tried to snap my braces, but I escaped by pretending I had an awful headache. But that is all, unless you count that old boilerwoman, not quite right in the head, who used to expose herself to the new male typists.

Most women are willing to treat a man with courtesy and generosity so long as he keeps his place and doesn't go around provoking their feelings by wearing low-cut waistcoats and see-through shirts (I hear that on Venus there are even see-through trousers!) and such like.

After all, women's passions are so much stronger than ours, and so much more difficult for them to control. They are always ready for sex, I read in an article the other day, while we men have to be, well, aroused, if you take my meaning.

Back home, loaded down with shopping, I put the children to bed. The boys go very quietly with their dolls. Isn't it funny how early they learn that guns, tractors, cowgirl suits, space-woman capsules and other feminine toys are not for them?

My daghter eventually follows them with her rocket-launcher but not before kicking a football through the transom again and trying to set fire to the Dolls' Hospital.

I try out a new recipe from the Man's Page of the paper (interesting article on "Could Women Make Good Fathers?") and settle down to the darning. I do hope my wife will ring up if she is going to be late. They are just little girls at heart, and tend to forget how lonely a working house-husband can get.

Ah, here she is, a trifle unsteady, I fear, and smelling suspiciously of pipe smoke and after-shave. But at least she comes back to me, and by the way she keeps on putting a hand inside my T-Shirt, then playfully tweaking my moustache, in quite a romantic mood.

A man's life on Mars is not so bad, really, so long as you have a good woman to bring home the bacon.

Term Essays Made to Order

TORONTO (CP) — Who says cheaters never prosper?

Cheating on essays, a quiet fact of campus life for years, is becoming the basis for big business.

It's so big, in fact, that American companies made about $250,000 selling essays last year—and now they plan to expand into Canada.

One U.S. company is training men to manage offices in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver. Another is planning to install a free phone system for students to use to order essays from anywhere in North America.

The trade in purchased essays which students hand in as their own so far has been casual in Canada.

Fraternities have been singled out as one of the few organizations to maintain well-stocked essay banks.

"Sure there's essay trading between frat members," said John Kenrick, president of the University of Toronto's Inter-Fraternity Council.

ON PERSONAL BASIS

"But it's all on a personal basis. Our house has a file, but it's only got about 15 papers and they're all old ones."

He said the practice among fraternities is dying out.

To date, commercialized plagiarism, as this new industry is called, has taken its strongest roots around Boston where the student population exceeds 150,000. Boston also has an adequate labor pool—writers, teachers and graduate students who have fallen on hard times and need the money they can make ghost-writing essays.

In the U.S. last year the leading essay houses sold more than 10,000 papers at an average cost of $3 a page. This produced close to $250,000.

And one company spokesman said the industry will do an even bigger business this year.

School officials said if the practice is allowed to continue a college degree will become increasingly less credible as a certification of a high level of academic competence.

Firms claim they are educational publishing houses and will provide, on request, custom-made essays on any given topic.

WRITE TO FORM

Bill Carmody, who runs the oldest and largest such firm, International Termpapers Inc., has built a file of more than 80,000 essays and has a staff of more than 400 free-lance writers who will write to form for a fee of 50 cents to $1 a page. Mr. Carmody retails copies for $2.25 a page.

So far, the firm advertises only in the U.S. but, "soon we're installing a toll-free phone service so kids can get to us free from anywhere in North America."

"We're becoming more and more interested in Canada," said Mr. Carmody, who said he has had inquiries from Ontario interests about opening a franchise in Canada.

Mr. Carmody's closest competitor, Termpapers Unlimited, already has done good business in Canada, said its treasurer, Ward Warren.

He said his firm will, "in the immediate future," open offices in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver.

MEN IN TRAINING

"The men who will be managing these offices are already in training."

If officials at Harvard and other Boston area universities have their way, however, Termpapers and its competitors will be forced to close shop before any such expansion can be completed.

And in Toronto, Eric Wright, dean of arts at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, said there is "definitely something wrong when a student hands in plagiarized work."

Appeal Passes Goal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The lower mainland United Appeal Monday announced it has surpassed its campaign goal of $4 million. Campaign chairman Douglas Suteliffe said the appeal was a success, with a total of $4,002,892 promised.

Cup Visitor Fined

VANCOUVER (CP) — Anthony White, 53, of Forestburg, Alta., who was involved in an accident seen on national television, was fined $250 Monday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

White was driving a camper truck which struck a motorcycle policeman during the Gray Cup football parade Nov. 27.

New Park Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Buntzen Lake, east of Vancouver, will be developed as a recreation area and park by British Columbia Hydro and the provincial parks branch. The lake will be turned over to the parks branch for recreational development, subject to future power requirements by B.C. Hydro. There are two hydro-electric power plants at the lake at present.

Saanich Awaits Job Verdict

Saanich council is expecting to hear any day — perhaps this week — that its application for $280,000 under the federal government's local initiatives program has been approved by a special Canada Manpower committee in Vancouver.

The good news was given to council Monday night by municipal administrator John Tribe, who suggested that as soon as word of the approval comes through there should be an immediate start on some of the work-creating projects in the Saanich program.

Tribe said it would be a "nice gesture" for council to provide the new jobs if possible before Christmas, and the necessary council financing could be found from a surplus on the 1971 municipal budget.

The federal contribution under the program is a maximum of $100 per man-week, plus an additional 17 per cent for materials and equipment.

Earlier in the meeting, Tribe had said the municipality should end the year with a surplus of about $25,000 or $30,000.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said: "The only thing that can interfere with that now is snow" (a reference to the expense involved in snow clearance from roads).

Servants Await Judgment

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judgment was reserved Monday on a ruling sought by the British Columbia Government Employees' Union that the provincial cabinet must meet with it to discuss "the general welfare and conditions of employment" of civil servants.

Tom Berger, lawyer for the union, contended that the Civil Servants Act binds the cabinet to discuss issues under this heading with the union. He said the cabinet has no power to delegate this duty to the civil service commission.

Isloyd McKenzie opposed the application for the attorney-general, who is named as defendant in the union's quest, on the grounds that under the Civil Servants Act, the government "assigns" rather than "delegates" to the civil service commission its right to handle questions dealing with the "general welfare and working conditions" of its employees.

Atkinson Criticizes New Small-Farm Aid

WINNIPEG (CP) — The National Farmers Union moved Monday to set up its own study of policies needed to revitalize the economically-sagging agriculture industry as the federal government announced another program designed to assist farmers.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson chose the first day of the NFU's four-day annual convention to announce at a news conference some details of the small-farm development program, a $150 million, seven-year program designed to allow young men to enlarge small operations and older farmers to retire with sufficient funds.

For those who wish to retire from farming, the program will make an adjustment grant, to be added to the selling price of their land. They will be able to take the grant either in a lump sum or as an annuity.

They also will have the option of retaining their farm home and an appropriate surrounding piece of land for as long as they wish, Olson said.

ATKINSON CRITICAL

But Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, NFU president, said the program "in no way tackles the basic problem of improving the farmers' earning ability."

Atkinson said the new federal program will mean that younger farmers buying the land vacated by the older, retiring producers, will in effect be assuming the financial burden carried by the older farmers.

Liberal Calls NDP 'Formidable Machine'

REGINA (CP) — The New Democratic Party in Saskatchewan was described Monday night by D. G. Steuart, acting leader of the Liberal opposition, as "one of the most formidable machines in North America."

Steuart was addressing about 220 persons at a public meeting along with Cy MacDonald and George Leith, all of whom are seeking the provincial Liberal leadership at a convention Friday and Saturday in Saskatoon.

"The NDP have lots of money," said Steuart, who took over party leadership after the death in July of former premier Ross Thatcher, exactly a month after the NDP swept the Liberals from power in a general election.

"On top of that, they also have the power of government and we know they won't hesitate to use it.

"We are actually fighting one of the most formidable political machines in North America and we're doing it with one hand tied behind our backs.

The Liberals' weakness is financial, he said, appealing for more contributions to the party coffers.

He said a good financial base is one way the Liberals could regain power from the NDP in 1975 and he warned that he would not be "an easy leader" if selected at the convention.

"If we are to win, we must mount a crusade ... to tell the people about Liberalism. That's how we will win back this government."

MacDonald, one of the 15 Liberal MLAs to be re elected June 23, was welfare minister in the Thatcher cabinet.

STROM DECLINES BID

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Social Credit Leader Harry Strom said today he would not consider running federally for the Progressive Conservative Party.

"I'm not interested in any way, shape or form in making any transfers, federally or provincially, to the PCs," Strom said in an interview.

He made the comment following a report from Ottawa that the Conservatives want him to run against Liberal cabinet minister H. A. (Bud) Olson in the Medicine Hat riding.

Crown Withdraws Obscenity Charge

SASKATOON (CP) — A charge of presenting obscene entertainment against theatre manager Robert Middleton of Saskatoon was withdrawn in court Monday.

However, Crown prosecutor Les Surtees told court the same charge would be laid later this week against Middleton's employer, Famous Players Ltd.

Middleton was charged after police seized the film The Stewardesses at a city theatre.

Defence counsel Clarence Estey told court the Crown had intended to charge Famous Players, but had named Middleton, and the charge should be dropped.

Judge R. H. King agreed to let the charge be withdrawn and Surtees said a new summons would be issued.

Budget Hiked

CALGARY (CP)—The city commissioners Monday night handed down an $86 million capital budget for 1972, up $13 million from 1971.

Calgary residents won't notice the increase on their tax bills until 1973, when the mill rate is expected to increase at least 2.5 mills or $18 on an average assessment. The commissioners predict the mill rate for borrowing charges will increase to 15.4 mills from 12.8 mills.

Sit-In Continues

EDMONTON (CP)—Indians from Northeastern Alberta reserves today were in their seventh week of a sit-in at the downtown offices of the federal department of Indian affairs.

Ralph Blackman, chief of the Chipewyan tribe at Cold Lake, Alta., said the Indians would continue to occupy the offices until they "get the commitment we are asking for" — better living conditions and more reserve schools.

Loans Granted

BARRHEAD, Alta. (CP) — Provincial loans have been granted to allow construction of a $300,000 stock feed plant at this northwestern Alberta town, 55 miles northwest of Edmonton. The plant, which is scheduled for completion in mid-March, will specalize in feed supplements and premixes.

Safe Living

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP) — This eastern Saskatchewan community of 6,000 is setting its sights on another traffic safety record. Up to 1970 the city had eight consecutive fatality-free years but the string was broken that year by a fatality on the outskirts. Since then Melville has gone one year with no traffic fatalities and council was presented with a Canada Safety Award.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 27-year-old man was sentenced to six months in prison Monday by Judge William Ostler for three breaking and entering offences.

Court was told earlier that Maurice Crumly, 1711 Duchess, was on bail Oct. 20 when he was apprehended on the third offence. The other two charges arose in April.

Crumly earlier pleaded guilty.

Defence counsel Harold Turnham said his client had been looking for a job and was frustrated at the prospects of not finding one.

Ostler said he didn't see the accused as a vicious person but rather a foolish and weak one.

Crumly was caught about 1 a.m. Oct. 20, leaving a garage he had broken into in the 2300-block Estevan.

Last April 30, Crumly was apprehended after a chase in the Sayward Building, 1207 Douglas, in the early hours.

Investigation revealed that he broke into two offices, taking $10 from the drawer of a desk.

Louis F. Riou, 49, 536 Johnson, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for a year when he pleaded guilty to four counts of false pretences.

Court was told that the accused wrote four worthless cheques totalling about $60 at Eatons in April.

Ostler took into account the fact that Riou spent about five months in hospital under psychiatric care both in Victoria and the lower mainland since the offences.

Leonard Kerr, 19, of 3213 Loledo Place, was fined a total of $375 when he pleaded guilty to attempting to steal gas and driving without insurance and a driver's licence.

Court was told the accused was caught trying to siphon gas into his car from another on a parking lot about 11 p.m. Sunday.

He had no driver's licence or insurance at the time.

Montgomery Jones, 18, of 1120 McClure, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to carrying a concealed weapon.

The accused had a hunting knife with a four-inch blade under his jacket when stopped by police near the new Crystal Pool at Central Park. Ostler put Jones on probation for 18 months.

Gary W. Bierne, 18, of 188 St. Charles, was fined $50 when he pleaded guilty to wilful damaging four panes of glass at the Old Forge nightclub about 2 a.m. Nov. 25.

The accused was ordered to pay in addition $25 damages.

Douglas Grant Cooley, 28, of HMCS Naden, was fined $350 in traffic court by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for three months.

Jailed for Phoney Call

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Charles Davidson, a 35-year-old transient, was sentenced Monday to nine months definite and six months indeterminate on charges of conveying false information by telephone.

The former Montreal and Hamilton resident had been found guilty of attempting Aug. 3 to extort $250,000 from the federal government.

He had telephoned the defence department and offered for that amount of money to tell them where there was a cache of 900 rifles and a quantity of explosives within 12 hours distance of Ottawa.

He also threatened to turn the weapons and explosives against the military headquarters if his $250,000 demand was not met within 24 hours.

The office which he telephoned twice, was the scene of a terrorist bomb explosion last year in which a civilian employee was killed.

Pathfinder

First shipment of ore for a tune-up at its Lili asbestos mine ½miles south of Asbestos, Que., is expected in about one week, reports Pathfinder Resources Ltd.

Much-expanded tonnage is anticipated following a drilling program which continues. The bulk sampling and mill testing is expected to improve over-all assay of the ore.

All-Can

Marked turnaround from a loss position in 1970 to a $157,851 profit in 1971 is reported by All-Can Holdings Ltd., Vancouver-based holding company for a broadcast and film distribution firm.

Films accounted for $275,000 of $568,304 income, compared with $305,669 ayear ago, all of it from broadcasting.

Net profit included an item of $67,499 from the sale of its FM licence and assets, compared with the loss of $31,580 a year earlier.

RH Mines

Additional property has been acquired in the Kamloops area by Rolling Hills Copper Mines Ltd., which is being canvassed by two major companies on the prospect of exploration agreements.

An 80-claim block was obtained for cash and nine Crown claims granted. Efforts are being made to obtain a further block.

In its gas exploration agreement, in which it holds 37½ per cent interest, RH Mines reports two dry wells have been drilled at a cost of $80,000 with two to go.

Trimac

A new firm, Dominion Waste Management Ltd., has been formed by Trimac Ltd. as a wholly-owned subsidiary available to customers in Canada.

Nucleus of the company is an Edmonton firm, Dominion Disposal Services Ltd., acquired by Trimac whose trucking operations will provide management, equipment design, bulk handling, manufacturing and other services.

Abitibi

A new company, Abitibi Newsprint Corp., has been formed in the U.S. to take over functions of three companies now operating on behalf of Canadian and U.S. paper mills.

Abitibi Paper Sales Co. Ltd., Clarendon Paper Sales Co. and Abitibi Papers Inc., are merged in the new company, with headquarters in Birmingham. The firm expects to strengthen its marketing position in the consolidation.

IUC

Shifting of International Utilities Corp. headquarters from Toronto to Wilmington, Del., this month brings with it the resignation of three Canadians from the board of directors.

Seats occupied by Paul Desmarais, chairman of Power Corp. of Canada; former lumberman F. Clarence Manning, and Bruce F. Wilson, president of Union Gas of Canada Ltd., are being taken by two Americans.

They are IU senior vice-presidents John T. Jackson and J. G. Rubenstein, who have been with the company since 1966.

Foremost

In its first report under the name Foremost International Industries Ltd., the former Agratec Industries Ltd. shows net operating profit of $404,000 on sales of $7.98 million in the year to Sept. 30.

With the inclusion of extraordinary items, the company had net income in the nine months amounting to $2.6 million. They included a tax reduction on prior losses, and $2 million from reduction of liabilities. Agratec was in receivership until June 30, making a comparison with last year's figures unrealistic.

Earnings a share after the tax reduction but not counting the restating of liabilities were 5.1 cents.

MEPC

A new offer of $10 million in 8¾ per cent series B sinking fund debentures will be made by a group of investment firms on behalf of M.E.P.C. Canadian Properties Ltd., subsidiary of one of the world's largest real estate companies.

The London-based parent, Metropolitan Estate and Property Corp., owns 68 per cent of the Canadian company.

Among its Victoria holdings are International House, Oak Bay centre and the Bank of B.C. Building. It also holds 150 feet of frontage in the 700 block of Yates.

Soviet Bid 'Dumping' —Dominion

Times News Services

TORONTO — Notice of intention to file a formal dumping complaint against a Russian bid for Mica dam turbines has been given by Dominion Engineering Ltd.

The Montreal-based company, according to the Financial Times, has advised revenue department authorities it will protest to the anti-dumping tribunal if the $9.472-million bid of Energomachexport is accepted by B.C. Hydro.

Dominion Engineering was the only Canadian bidder on the four turbines required for initial power-generation at the new dam site. Its tender was for $15.549 million, comparing with a Japanese bid for $14.272 million, second-lowest of eight ranging up to $22.4 million.

If Dominion can prevent the Russian bid from being considered it intends to stress its own quality and service over the Japanese company's.

Hydro awaits the return Sunday of a five-man engineering team from Russia. They left Vancouver Nov. 24 on a mission to examine the Soviet capacity to deliver and maintain the type of equipment specified.

Bidders have been asked to agree to an extension of time for the award of a contract.

N.S. Offer 'Too Low'

HALIFAX (CP) — A. Russell Harrington, president of Nova Scotia's largest privately-owned electric utility, termed Monday the offer by the government-owned Nova Scotia Power Commission to purchase control of the utility "insufficient."

Harrington told a news conference that directors of Nova Scotia Light and Power Co. Ltd. have advised shareholders not to sell their shares or turn them over to anyone for the time being.

He said the directors realize the government can take over the company but feel the only action they can take is to ensure the takeover "is at a fair price."

Premier Gerald Regan announced Friday that the power commission would pay $23 a share for ordinary stock of Nova Scotia Light and Power.

GM GETS A NEW BOSS

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of General Motors Corp. elected Richard C. Gerstenberg, 62, as new chairman and chief executive officer of the auto firm Monday.

Gerstenberg, vice-chairman and treasurer, will take over direction of the company Jan. 1, succeeding James M. Roche.

Roche, who turns 65 next week, must step down under GM's mandatory retirement program. He has held the position for the last four years.

Gerstenberg became vice-chairman last year, moving ahead of president Edward N. Cole in GM's corporate hierarchy. Cole, also 62, was given additional duties Monday as chairman of the board's executive committee.

Gerstenberg has spent 39 years with GM. His new job carries a salary of $250,000 a year, but bonuses, fees and stock options have raised the chairman's pay to as much as $790,000 in the past.

Peter Pollen Proposes for Victoria:

(1) Limit the height and location of highrises.

(2) An Inner Harbour Plan is vitally needed to properly develop and beautify one of Victoria's greater assets.

(3) The creation of a Downtown Central Advisory Board to help make the business district of the city more attractive to people.

(4) An Old Town Advisory Board. This committee will plan the preservation and revitalization of the historical buildings.

(5) That the stated priorities of our 6.3 million capital budget must be re-examined.

On Saturday, December 11th, vote Peter Pollen for Mayor and Vote for Victoria—a great city today—a greater city tomorrow.

CLIFF WRAPS UP SNOOKER CROWN

TORONTO— Former Victorian Cliff Thornburn, now playing out of Vancouver, defeated Ken Shea of Dartmouth, N.S., in Monday night's only game to capture the Chenier North American snooker championship.

Thorburn, 23, won the best-of-71 series 36-15 to collect the $1,000 top prize. Shea took home $500.

During the tourney, Thorburn equalled a world record with runs of 135, 134, 133, 125, 103 and 100. Only George Chenier of Ottawa, after whom the tourney was named, and Joe Davis of London, England, had previously scored six century runs in title match competition.

Suddenly, There's a Race

RATELLE CATCHES ESPOSITO

MONTREAL (CP) While centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins has become the first player to score 20 goals in the National Hockey League this season, he isn't having it all his own way in the individual scoring race.

Another centre Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers, after spending most of last month shuffling between third and fourth place in the points race made his move last week and pulled into a first-place tie with Esposito with 44 points, including 16 goals.

Esposito's 20 goal mark the eighth season in a row he has scored at least that number.

Ratelle, meanwhile, led all NHL scorers last week as he picked up two goals and seven assists in New York's three games. His nine point week enabled Ratelle to move past team-mate Vic Hadfield and Bobby Orr of Boston, who share third place with 42 points each.

Ratelle, who has never won the scoring championship, came closest to doing so in 1967-68 when he had 78 points and finished fourth behind Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks, Esposito, and now-retired Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings.

Rod Gilbert, the right winger on the Ratelle-Hadfield line for New York, is in fifth position with 41 points, a comfortable seven points ahead of Gilbert Perreault of Buffalo Sabres.

Perreault, last season's rookie-of-the-year, had an 18-game point-scoring streak snapped Sunday when he failed to gain a goal or an assist as the Sabres defeated Minnesota North Stars 3-1 in Buffalo.

Perreault's streak began Oct. 24 and ran until Dec. 4, during which time he collected 10 goals and 21 assists in 18 games.

That tied the longest such streak any player has had in the last 11 seasons.

Howe went 18 straight games and 10 goals and 17 assists in the 1960-61 season, while Orr equalled the feat last year by scoring nine goals and assisting on 26 others in 18 games.

The record is held by Bronco Horvath, who scored at least one point in 22 consecutive games for Boston during the 1959-60 campaign. The records in this department reach back only to 1946-47 when the league began keeping game-by-game statistics.

Charlie Thomas: His Life Was Dedicated to Sport

The hearts of many in the city should be heavy today. Charlie Thomas died suddenly, peacefully, in his sleep on Sunday night. He was 80.

For Charlie, it seemed much too soon to be taken, even though his was a full life.

He was good for sport, when he played, as a youth, and in his latter years he inspired a deep respect from all who came to be associated with him in his various executive capacities, or casually, at the arena, or on the golf course.

He worked at the press, as did his father before him, and it was fun to see and talk to him on the job. He knew his work, and did it well, but he always had time for a friendly word to a co-worker or someone who happened by.

His sincerity of purpose was never doubted, and, even after retirement, he maintained an active interest in sports — primarily lacrosse and figure skating.

For years he kept the books on lacrosse "right down to that last penny," said Andy Ovcharick, a long-time friend, and he also kept the books and records of the Victoria Figure Skating Club, where he was a legend in his time.

Charlie loved an argument, and he talked from experience and a wry sense of humor that could never fail to be appreciated.

And if he could prick you with a verbal barb, he would. But when Charlie did the skewering, it was never resented. And it was probably deserved too.

But oh, how he loved to wrangle! An excellent fly fisherman, one of his favorite companions in years gone by was the late Ed Popham. And some of their experiences are stories in themselves. They would drive together to the lake, or stream, then suddenly disagree, almost violently it would appear to a stranger, and even fish from different boats, or opposite banks of the river, from which distances they could hurl better niceties at one another. But they were always in a friendly vein, such as some of his almost weekly battles with Roy Woolsey over the merits of box lacrosse. Still, the next week this lovable cuss would be right back at the fishing hole, or with Wolsey at the lacrosse game.

It was Thomas who for years directed those lacrosse program sales, and it was from the proceeds of those sales, that many hundreds of boys got the equipment to learn the game in the minor divisions.

It may not be generally known, but Charlie Thomas was one of those nominated for Sportsman of the Year honors last spring and the year before. He didn't get it, but he had all of the qualifications necessary for the honor. And when he wasn't busy keeping books on lacrosse, or fishing, or painting lacrosse balls, or instructing in figure skating, he found time on his hands to do other things for people.

He organized a model airplane club some years ago, and often had as many as 30 youngsters in his basement. "It didn't matter to him whether people were 12 or 80," Ovcharick said. "He'd help them."

Charlie was active until the end, too. He was at the opening ceremonies at the new Crystal Pool 10 days ago, and had been in Andy and Jack's tire shop as late as Friday of last week.

"He'd come in and help out," said Andy. "Make parts, clean up, and make coffee. He had to be doing something. Except on Mondays and Wednesdays — that's when he would play golf."

If Charlie was unassuming, it was by his choice. "He didn't toot his own horn," said Andy. "He just did what he knew had to be done, and in his own way, and it always got done."

This personal association with Charlie Thomas didn't actually begin until he had lived almost two-thirds of a normal lifetime; and there always was the lingering thought that if Charlie Thomas said he would do the job, it would get done just a little bit better than by anyone else. And in that delightful, unassuming way of his.

"He did so damn much work," Ovcharick stated. "People will never know just how much. He was just a great guy."

Which is probably why he left the indellible impression that what he had enjoyed in life, everyone else somehow had missed.

Television Guys Upstaged By Chiefs' Passing Combo

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Len Dawson and Otis Taylor have upstaged the guys in the television booth again on the National Football League's Monday night television series.

The Kansas City Chiefs' passing combination pulled out all the stops in a 26-17 victory over San Francisco '49ers in their latest prime time show.

With a victory over Oakland Raiders next Sunday, coach Hank Stram's Chiefs would clinch a division title and a berth in the playoffs, which they missed last year when they were defending Super Bowl champions.

HITS 16 of 29

Nothing seems to sharpen the Chiefs' passing attack like the Monday night time slot.

Dawson completed 16 of 29 passed for 263 yards against the '49ers. One of the passes went to Taylor for 46 yards and a touchdown, and the big wide receiver scored another touchdown on a 25-yard run off an end-around play.

Earlier this year, the Chiefs beat Pittsburgh 38-16 on a Monday night as Dawson threw for 290 yards and three touchdowns, including two to Taylor, and last year Dawson fired four scoring passes in a 44-24 Monday night rout of Baltimore.

Some of the fans who came early to Candlestick Park to beat the rush-hour traffic hung out signs greeting the American Broadcasting Company's announcing team.

STOLED THE SHOW

But Dawson and Taylor stole the show.

Quarterback John Brodie of the '49ers passed for 229 yards and threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Ted Kwalick. But he also threw the only interception of the night, which led to one of Jan Stenerud's four field goals for the Chiefs.

Kansas City, now 8-3-1, moved ahead of Oakland Raiders 7-3-2 in the American Foothall Conference West. The Chiefs are alone on top now for the first time this year.

The '49ers 7-5, fell behind Lost Angeles Rams 7-4-1 with two weeks left in the season.

Cougars Hope Garry's Return Will End Skid

The last time Victoria Cougars gained a point in the Western Canada Hockey League, Garry Donaldson was in the lineup.

That — was — remember? on Nov. 18 here when Donaldson scored a goal and assisted on another to help Victoria to a 3-3 tie with the mighty Edmonton Oil Kings.

Since then, Cougars have lost eight consecutive games and it appears more than coincidental that Donaldson missed all but one of them.

CLOSE IN TWO

But the Cougars are now back to the more-friendly confines of Memorial Arena where they host New Westminster Bruins Wednesday, and the good news is that Donaldson's healthy again.

"We're counting on Garry to snap us out of this slump," said Cougar general manager Eric Bishop. "We were close in two of those games on the prairies and just ran out of steam in Medicine Hat and Calgary. The team plays best when Donaldson is playing well."

Donaldson has been practising with the Victoria Junior Cubs for the last few days and is expected to get considerable ice time against the Bruins.

DOUBTFUL STARTER

Chances are he may get more than he reckons on. Cougar defenceman Murray Worley is a doubtful starter for Wednesday's game because of a cut to his left arm and a chipped wrist bone which have put him out of action since Victoria's 3-2 loss to Winnipeg Jets here on Nov. 26.

And the cellar-dwelling Cougars will need all the help they can get against the Bruins, who will be out to strengthen their fourth-place playoff hopes in the Western Division.

Game time is 8:30 p.m.

Contract Extended

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates have announced the signing of general manager Joe L. Brown to a new five-year contract.

Brown, 53, has been with the Pirates since 1955.

CHARLIE THOMAS

CHARLIE THOMAS DIES

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday in Hayward's Chapel for Charlie Thomas, one of Victoria's better-known sports personalities, who died Sunday night at his home.

Born in Victoria in 1891, Thomas was connected with sports in this area since about the turn of the century. He played field lacrosse, was a member of the Victoria West soccer club and helped the James Bay Athletic Association fours without cox to the Pacific Coast rowing championship in 1912. An avid fly fisherman, Thomas had also been a member of the Uplands Golf Club since 1924.

His interest in lacrosse continued into the box lacrosse era and his work was commemorated last year when the box at Topaz Park was named in his honor.

City Puck Officials Suspended by BCAHA

Directors of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association took strong and prompt action during a weekend meeting in Vancouver after receiving a complaint from the University of Victoria.

They have suspended indefinitely two Victoria hockey officials — Vince Martorino and Duncan MacLean — for their actions during a Western Intercollegiate Athletic Association game involving UVic Vikings and University of Alberta Golden Bears.

Ivan Temple, secretary-registrar of the BCAHA, disclosed that telegrams were sent at noon Monday to MacLean and Martorino advising them "that your membership in the B.C Referee's Organization has been lifted indefinitely owing to your action University of Victoria-University of Alberta game at Esquimalt, November 27, 1971."

Mike Elcock, UVic athletic assistant, had sent a letter of protest to the BCAHA, questioning the right of these officials to handle any hockey games in the future.

CAUSED DELAY

Elcock reported that Martorino, the referee, and linesmen MacLean and Ken Kelboug caused the game to be delayed for several minutes when they refused to return to the ice for the third period until they had been paid in cash.

Elcock said the main cash contributor was the Alberta coach and that it was his understanding that Martorino and MacLean were primarily responsible for the demand.

"It mattered not to them that such payments had been made by cheque for the past 11 years, and that such payments had always been made," Elcock added.

NO TROUBLE

Joe Iannarelli, manager of Esquimalt Sports Centre who also reported the incident to the BCAHA, has confirmed that payments to officials in leagues involving UVic have been made by cheque for several years.

"We have never had troubles paying the officials or collecting from the university," Iannarelli commented.

BCAHA directors took no action against Kelboug, apparently believing he had only a minor part in the incident, which may have been partially sparked by the fact that referees in Vancouver receive more money to handle university games than do those in Victoria.

MINOR PART

"The B.C. directors are quite upset that this should happen with a team from another province," said Temple, who moved that the directors "make a habit of taking positive action against any team that refuses to return to the ice after starting a game."

Police Arrest Pair of Falcons

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — Atlanta Falcon's quarterback Bob Berry was arrested on charges of assaulting a police officer and defensive end Randy Marshall was arrested on charges of keeping a disorderly house following a raid in Cobb County Monday night, sheriff's officers said.

In addition, country police arrested Carol Nichols, 20, of Marietta, on marijuana charges and she was being held under $1,000 bond.

Berry was released under $500 bond and Marshall was placed under $500 bond.

Berry told reporters after he was released that several officers had attacked him when he asked them why they had arrested Marshall.

Cobb Deputy Sheriff Carl Price said the three were arrested after about 10 deputies and country police raided a party at Marshall's apartment. Price said less than one ounce of marijuana was recovered during the raid.

Price said Miss Nichols told officers that she was the only person at the party smoking marijuana and that she should be arrested. The deputy said Marshall also was taken into custody since the marijuana was in his apartment.

Phyllis Coxworth Uplands' Captain

Nanaimo Club To Tackle Stockers

Stockers North Americans of the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League will tackle Nanaimo CNR Believers of the Pacific Coast League at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in an exhibition contest at George Pearkes Arena.

Two former B.C. Junior League players — Larry Limacher and Don Brown — will be in the Nanaimo lineup as will goaltender Gerry Crist of Reno, Nev. Believers are coached by former-Victorian Neil Standley.

Jenkins Set Pace For '71 Hurlers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins, the National League's Cy Young Award winner, led the league's pitchers in six departments in a busy 1971 baseball season.

The official statistics released today show that the Chicago Cubs right-hander from Chatham, Ont., had the most victories, 24; tied with Bill Stoneman of Montreal Expos for most starts with 39; had the most complete games, 30; and hurled the most innings, 325.

He also gave up the most hits, 304, and home runs 29.

The Mets ace recorded a 1.76 ERA finishing well ahead of runner-up Dave Roberts of San Diego Padres, 2.19. Seaver broke his own league reebrd for strikeouts in a season by a righthander by fanning 289.

Seaver, 20-10 this year, had a 2.81 ERA and 283 strikeouts the previous season.

Wayne Granger of Cincinnati Reds was the league's most frequently used relief pitcher, with 70 appearances. Dave Giusti of Pittsburgh Pirates had the most saved from the bullpen, 30.

Dock Ellis of the champion Pirates had the longest winning streak, with 13 straight victories between May 2 and July 17.

MIGHTIEST CUT of all suggests some people can stretch a point, even to hairiest degree. One such individual was Argentine soccer player Heraldo Becerra, a member of Spain's Athletico de Madrid team. After coach objected to Heraldo's long hair (left), player went all the way and got complete job (right). It might have been a case of cut, or be cut from squad.

"He deserves to win it," Trevino said Monday after Nicklaus had moved past him with a $20,000 victory in the Walt Disney World Open, final event of 1971 for both players.

"He's a better player. Just look at the record. He hasn't played in half as many tournaments as I have. Winning that kind of money in what, 18 or 19 tournaments? That's strong, man, strong."

THREE-STROKE WIN

Nicklaus, in front all the way, shot a final round four-under-par 68 for a 273 total and a three-stroke victory over Deane Beman the rain-delayed tournament. It is his fourth money-winning crown.

Trevino, who established himself as the game's new folk hero with his lightning sweep of the American, British and Canadian Opens this summer, held a lead of some $15,000 going into the tournament.

He complained of being "punchy, mentally tired, just beat" and could finish no better than tied for 21st. He won $1,425 for a $231,201.97 total, still far better than Nicklaus's 1967 record of $211,566.66.

ARNIE'S BEST YEAR

George Knudson was the lone Canadian in the championship round. The touring Toronto Pro, who soared to a 74 Sunday, recovered with a 71 and finished at 284, worth $1,044.

Arnold Palmer, who had his best money year ever at the age of 42, had a tie for third in the Disney and posted a money total of $209,603.77 — more than Ben Hogan won in a career but third on the list this season.

"Not a bad year's work," said the 31-year-old Nicklaus, grinning after pushing his earnings for the season to almost one-quarter of a million dollars.

Beman had a final 69 for 276.

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

The next time you watch the pros play, notice how many times a forward breaks in on the goal by getting his body on the outside of the defenceman, then pushing in quickly.

Youngsters who learn this trick will quickly start scoring extra goals.

One of the best ways to practice this is to set objects out on the ice. I'm using one of the markers you sometimes see on the highways when lines are being painted. But chairs are just as good. Line about three chairs or other objects between the blueline and about 20 feet in front of the net.

Try to picture the objects as opposing players. Then skate around each object, keeping the puck away from the opposition so "he" can't hit your stick.

Always cut around the opposition by leaning one way and pushing with the outside skate. To beat the defenceman, you have to learn how to make the cuts very quickly. Remember, the forward has the edge in a one-on-one situation. He knows where he is going. The defenceman has to wait.

So practice until you can cut quickly. Lean and push, lean and push — that's the only way to learn this.

Then watch the scoring chances open up.

Rapid Goal Spree

Centre Tom Allen scored the tying, winning and insurance goals within a time-span of 77 seconds Monday to give Ingraham Buckaroos a 5-3 victory over Empress Paint in a Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League game at Memorial Arena.

In the other game, Stockers North Americans boosted their lead to six points by thumping Club Blues 6-1.

Allen counted his hat trick around the midway point of the third period, erasing a 3-2 deficit for Buckaroos.

Brent Atkins and Wes Borkowski counted the other Buckaroo goals while Andy Reid, John Vassos and Elwood Thomas answered for Empress.

Gerry Caldwell led Stockers to an eighth straight victory with two goals and an assist while George Bingham, Dennis Ferrill, Les Bergman and Murray Morrison contributed the other Stocker tallies. Barry Granger averted a shutout for CFB Blues.

Wesmen Edge Vikings

WINNIPEG — University of Victoria Vikings are winless in seven starts in the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic hockey league after dropping a 6-5 decision here Monday to University of Winnipeg Wesmen.

It was UVic's second consecutive defeat by one goal, coming on the heels of a 5-4 loss in Brandon on Saturday.

The loss was particularly disappointing for the Vikings, who outshot their hosts 31-26. The game was tied 3-3 after the first period, and Wesmen led 6-4 after 40 minutes.

In the final minute when they trailed by only one goal, Vikings tried vainly to pull goalkeeper Murray Finlay in favor of a sixth attacker but were unable to break out against tenacious Winnipeg forecheckers.

Victory increased Winnipeg's Prarie Division lead by six points over Manitoba and Brandon, while UVic is mired in the cellar of the Rockies Division.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

MAINLAND BOWLER IN FRONT

Pat Lemyre of Vancouver captured second place with 5,657 for $150 while Wally Weinberger of Victoria finished third with 5,563 for $100. Other finishers in the money were Bob Karr of Chemainus (5,497 for $75), Evie Weinberger (5,448 for $50) and George Van Kooten of Port Alberni (5,443 for $25).

De Macedo collected his $300 in the handicap division total while Mrs. Weinberger captured the $150 prize with 5,784. John Klosz of Surrey (5,755 for $100), Don Groves of Comox (5,754 for $75), Karr (5,753 for $50) and Lemyre (5,737 for $25) were the other winners.

Karr also rolled the high five-game block during the two-day competition with 1,540 while the high single game was a 401 effect by Victoria's Bill Cool.

Ninety bowlers competed in the tournament.

McCormick Wins

BRISBANE (Reuter) — Former Victorian Don McCormick defeated J. Blizzard of Australia, Monday in the opening round of the Queensland tennis championships. The Vancouver player scored a 7-5, 6-3 decision.

Aussie teenager Keith Hancock pulled the biggest surprise of the day when he toppled Wanaro N'Godrella of France, 3-6, 7-5, 7-5.

Shuttle Favorites Fall

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bruce Rollick and Rolf Patterson of Vancouver completed an upset Sunday by winning the men's doubles in the Manitoba Open badminton championships.

Rollick, No. 1 ranked in men's singles, and Patterson, No. 1 ranked with partner Mimi Nilsson in mixed doubles, joined forces to upset the No. 1 and No. 6 ranked duos in an eight-team event.

The west coast pair, who last played together about five years ago, eliminated top-ranked Dave Charron and Jim Lynch of Toronto, 5-15, 15-2, 15-11 in the semi-final Saturday, then followed with an exciting 17 16, 18-17 verdict over Wayne MacDonnell and Cam Dalgleish of Vancouver in the final Sunday.

"I think we may stick together, now," beamed Rollick, who earlier in the day lost, 15-5, 15-1, to MacDonnell in the men's singles final.

Patterson and Mrs. Nilsson were upset, 15-4, 15-17, 15-12, by the makeshift team of Pal Chawia of Winnipeg and Toronto's Marj Shedd in the mixed doubles final.

Nancy McKinley of Toronto brushed aside Jane Youngberg of Vancouver, 11-2, 11-6, in the singles, while Miss Shedd and Barbara Welch downed Judi Rollick and Mrs. Nillson, 15-8, 15-6, in the doubles.

CITY GYMNAST WINS AT KAMLOOPS

KAMLOOPS — Philip Delesalle of Victoria won five out of the six events he entered to capture the novice (18-and-under) aggregate crown in the B.C. Festival of Winter Sports invitational gymnastic competition here at the weekend.

Among the other Victorians entered, Bruce Hurn placed second overall in the tyro (16-and-under) class while Philip's brother, Frank finished third.

HOLIDAY CONFUSION REMAINS

Confusion surrounding a provincial cabinet order which was intended to declare Monday, Dec. 27 a statutory holiday in lieu of Christmas won't be cleared up by another cabinet order, contrary to earlier reports.

The reason? It would only confuse things further, Labor Minister James Chabot said Monday.

Chabot undertook last week to revise the first order because it could result in some workers under union contract getting an extra day off under their work agreement because an entirely new statutory holiday has been created by the government.

This would mean some workers would get a day off in lieu of Christmas and another in lieu of the holiday created in lieu of Christmas.

Chabot said he will have to rely on good will and other seasonal virtues to avoid complications. Revising the order would just create new problems, he said.

The provincial government has given its employees a four-day Christmas weekend including Friday Dec. 24 and the Monday following.

Attempted Murder

DUNCAN — A 24-year-old Duncan man has been charged with attempted murder after a shooting incident here Sunday morning.

Robin Chaster, of 60 Allenby Road, was remanded for a preliminary hearing until Jan. 6 on the charge by Provincial Court Judge Lance Heard Monday.

Brent Clackson, 19, of 5780 Alderlea, who was shot through the groin, is reported in satisfactory condition in Cowichan Hospital.

Chaster has been released on $3,000 bail and two surities of $3,000 each.

Rip-Roaring Welcome To Stanfield Arms Call

OTTAWA (CP) — Before voting on such touchy topics as the right of self-determination for Quebec and the legalization of marijuana, Conservative delegates received a call to arms Monday from Party Leader Robert Stanfield, who pledged to create a new climate of confidence in Canada.

"That," he told 1,000 cheering supporters, "will be the central issue in the coming campaign."

The delegates, who spent the day plodding through resolutions in various workshops, gathered in the ballroom of a downtown hotel during the evening to give Mr. Stanfield a rip-roaring welcome as he began laying foundations for the next election, expected next year.

On 28 occasions the delegates interrupted Mr. Stanfield with bursts of applause — two of them standing ovations — and when he said that, if everyone works, he will be the next prime minister of Canada, the roar was deafening. With pledges of support from provincial party leaders, who shared his platform, it was Mr. Stanfield's night. There wasn't a dissenting voice in the ballroom.

POT SPARKS DEBATE

But there were many dissenting delegate voices during the day as, in the various workshops, they whittled down the resolutions to face the convention today. There was a bitter workshop debate over the question of legalizing marijuana, as young Tories obviously packed the room for the quickly-sprung discussion.

The resolution was given the necessary approval for a full-convention vote today.

There were also strong arguments over the issue of foreign investment and what should be done about it. And, to the surprise of many, another workshop agreed to have a convention vote on whether Quebec, or any province, should have the right to self-determination.

This resolution, pushed forward by Martial Asselin, MP for Charlevoix, says that if a provincial population decides democratically to alter its political orientation, the federal government will not use force to fight the decision.

But generally, the workshops were low-key and often poorly attended as the delegates processed the resolutions which won't have any immediate effect on party policy.

Mr. Stanfield tore into the Liberal government with determined delight, concentrating on economic policies and referring to the tax legislation as a switch's brew. Finance Minister E. J. Benson was the man riding the broomstick.

The government was guilty of confusion, complacency and incompetence.

NEEDS NEW CLIMATE

What Canada needed was a new climate of confidence. There must be a new co-operation, not confrontation, with the provinces. There must be freedom for individuals to make their own decisions. There must be compassion for those unable to share in the economy.

The delegates applauded when Mr. Stanfield said that welfare, if not abused, is not a dirty word. They roared their approval when he said that, on the same terms, profit is not a dirty word, either.

There are persistent reports that some party members, not known as enthusiastic supporters of Mr. Stanfield, are throwing their support behind John Pallett, a former MP for Peel who was party whip in Mr. Diefenbaker's regime. Sources say this group is hoping to elect a complete slate of national officers under Mr. Pallett.

But there is no indication of the strength of the forces involved. No one admits to being part of any organized bloc.

Candidate Royal Deyell, now party treasurer, is said to have the support of most present executive members.

Other candidates are James Baskin, former MP for Renfrew South; Businessman Don Matthews of London, Ont., and Dr. S. F. Monestime, mayor of Mattawa, Ont.

Bond Issues Get Approval

The provincial cabinet has approved bond issues of $25 million for B.C. Hydro and Power Authority and $5 million for the B.C. School District's Capital Financing Authority.

The money, to finance Hydro expansion and school construction, will be borrowed from provincial trust funds at 6.93 per cent. Hydro's bonds are for a 25-year term and the school bonds for 20 years.

OAK BAY EYES VOTES, WASTE

Elections won't be the sole preoccupation of Oak Bay residents Saturday; environment-conscious residents will have the chance to contribute to local recycling of waste.

At Monday's council meeting it was noted that Project Recycle will be accepting newspapers at the Borden Street depot Saturday.

Ald. Brian Smith said a notice to this effect should be posted "if it doesn't contravene the election act."

Ald. Alan Hoey added:

"Thirty-six square miles of our forests could be saved by the cancellation of one year's subscription of the New York Times".

In other business council:

● Gave permission for the Seventh Day Adventists to sing carols and solicit funds in Oak Bay from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

● Approved the preliminary budget estimates of the Greater Victoria Public Library.

● Accepted a bid of $20,300 from Western Fence and Gate Supply Co. of Sidney to build a regulation-size lacrosse box at Carnarvon Park. It was noted that there was a great range of prices in the five bids received, the highest being from E. J. Hunter and Sons Ltd. for $28,469.

Employer Response to Jobless Plan Growing Quickly

BEVIS
. . . approvals soon

Employer response in Victoria and Vancouver to a new federal program set up to help employ the growing number of jobless who lack work experience is "starting to accelerate rapidly."

George Bevis, who was recently appointed by Canada Manpower as the Vancouver Island District co-ordinator for Ottawa's new special employment programs, said today about 100 applications have come into the regional office for the training-on-the-job program.

Bevis said that initial approvals will be made shortly by Manpower, through which the federal government will pay 75 per cent of wages to an employer who will train a person, between three and 12 months, for a newly-created job.

Bevis said this program is more or less designed to assist young persons, graduate students and married women seeking to enter the work force, all of whom would lack practical work experience.

Meanwhile, the federal government today announced approval of 33 projects, totalling $908,554, for community groups in B.C.

Two were approved for Victoria, and four for other Island centres under this incentive program which is also being co-ordinated by Bevis' new office.

James Bay United Church Action Committee will get $14,976 to hire five persons for outreach programs, and the Vic West Community Development Association will receive $16,380 for renovations to its 519 Craigflower property and for its planned after-school care centre.

Elsewhere on the Island, the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum will get $20,569 to construct a restoration building, the Alberni Low Income Group $25,938 for cleaning up and repairing senior citizen homes, the Denman Island Community Club $16,400 to clear a park and construct a boat ramp, and the Campbell River Family Services Society $10,200 to set up a crisis centre.

Bevis, in his new appointment, will be replaced by Doug Yearwood as Victoria Manpower manager until the incentive program expires at the end of May.

Intensive Care Unit Ruled Out

A proposal to establish an expanded intensive care unit on the sixth floor of St. Joseph's Hospital has been ruled out because of the cost, executive director Embert Van Tilburg said today.

A $2,500 feasibilty study by the hospital's architects wasn't completed after preliminary studies showed developing a nine or 10-bed unit for intensive care of the acutely ill would have cost $650,000.

It would have meant building a new stairwell from the ground to the sixth floor, expanding elevator facilities as well as adding wiring and plumbing, said Dr. Van Tilburg. The cost was prohibitive.

BIGGEST PROBLEM

He described the shortage of intensive care facilities at the hospital as its biggest problem at the moment.

A hospital's intensive care unit involves sophisticated telemetry for monitoring the minute-by-minute condition of critically ill patients such as heart attack or accident victims. It has a high ratio highly-qualified nursing staff.

SISTERS MOVED

There has been no increase in the four-bed intensive care unit the hospital now has for a number of years. But a steaddily increasing patient load has produced a need for at least twice as many, said Van Tilburg.

One of the problems the hospital has faced is space to locate any expansion of the unit. But a year ago the Sisters of St. Ann moved out of the hospital's sixth floor. It was a preliminary step by the Sisters, who founded the hospital 95 years ago, to turning the hospital over to the community.

There had been accommodation for 28 Sisters on the sixth floor.

CRITICISM

Instead of the expanded intensive care unit, the vacated space will now be used for employee facilities, including lockers and change rooms, Van Tilburg said.

Lack of space for employees and the run-down condition of what facilities there were have produced increasingly militant criticism from the Hospital Employees Union in recent years. The hospital board earlier this year moved provision of better staff facilities to a high position on its priority list.

YOUTH'S DAY

The four Victoria mayoralty candidates will be quizzed by the young people of the city during an open meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday arranged by Cool Aid.

The meeting will be held at Cool Aid's hostel at 1950 Fernwood.

SAANICH GIVING EXCESS SWANS

Saanich will be losing four of its mute swans, but gaining some trumpeter swans.

It was considered a fair exchange by Saanich council Monday night, when approval was given to a parks committee recommendation that one pair of cygnets each should be donated to the communities of Powell River and Waterloo, Ont.

As the item came up for discussion Ald. William Noel told council that parks administrator Bert Richman had been informed by the provincial wildlife branch that some trumpeter swans would be given to the municipality.

"I think trumpeters would be — noisy?" suggested Mayor Hugh Curtis — "an asset to the municipality," Noel said.

The alderman said the mute swans on Elk and Beaver Lakes were increasing at "rather an alarming rate" and posing a problem to the parks department in severe winters.

Ald. Ed Lum, chairman of the parks committee, agreed that the rising swan population is a bit of a headache, and said council should consider any further requests from communities wanting the birds.

Here Curtis chuckled as he read Richman's written report, commenting: "He says as it would be difficult to administer The Pill he recommends we should donate swans from time to time to interested communities."

'No Mark On Horse When Sold'

A woman horsebreeder testified in County Court today that a horse which ran at Sandown Park Aug. 21 appeared to have an identifying mark it should not have had if it was the same horse listed for the race.

The testimony came in the trial of owner-trainer David Baxter of Vancouver, who is accused of running another horse, Music Melody, as a substitute for the horse Last Note.

Baxter is accused of fraud in the alleged substitution in the seventh race on the last day of this summer's meet at Sandown.

Both horses involved are three-year-old fillies owned by Baxter, but Music Melody had a much better racing record.

This morning, Joan Hess of Delta testified she bred and raised Last Note and sold her to Baxter for $500 three days before the race in question. She said Last Note had never won a race while she owned her.

Mrs. Hess, a mother of five, watched a videotape replay of the seventh race and studied track photos. She said she thought she saw a white mark on the forehead of the horse pictured as running in the race under the name of Last Note.

Mrs. Hess said there was no such marking on Last Note.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Hess said she had discussed her testimony in detail during a phone call from one of the officers investigating the charge.

The jury also heard a running commentary on the race from North Vancouver jockey Devin Patrick Furlong, who rode the horse listed as Last Note in the race program

It was the seventh race on the last day of the three-week Sandown meet. Furlong's horse finished second, paying $37.30 in a quinella pool with the winner, Miss Jay Note.

Furlong said he was fouled by the winning horse at the far turn, when Miss Jay Note brushed him in passing.

The jockey said Baxter agreed to a protest on the foul being lodged after the race, even though the owner knew it would mean the race would come under close scrutiny by the track stewards.

Defence lawyer Paul Delaney of Vancouver discounted the videotape evidence because the picture was so small it was impossible to spot numbers on the horses.

Raymond Windecker Protests Compensation Board Action

Compensation Payments Stopped for UVic Student

A 23-year-old University of Victoria student who is fighting the Workmen's Compensation Board over an injury claim said today the board apparently considers there's no connection between his shoulder and his neck.

Raymond Windecker, of 2064 Allenby, said that essentially this is the basis on which the board is arguing that he is no longer entitled to compensation for an injury he received in a logging accident last summer.

MAY LEAVE

But as he began picketing the WCB office in Victoria today, Windecker said he will continue the fight — including legal action if necessary — to have compensation payments restored.

If he is unsuccessful he may have to leave UVic where he had hoped to gain a bachelor of arts degree next spring. He had planned to study law after that.

Windecker said he was hurt when he fell from a log near Tahsis last June, while working for Gran Bay Logging. On his claim form, which he submitted to the WCB, he described the injury as being in the back and neck region.

A series of examinations by doctors and orthopedic surgeons followed, including a stay in the WCB clinic in Vancouver where he was told he needed rest and further treatment.

But the board agreed to his suggestion that he should attend university rather than remain idle.

Windecker said at this point his compensation fell to $6 a day from the $400 a month he had been receiving, and then payments ceased altogether Nov. 7.

DOCTOR'S REPORT

The cutoff followed a report by a neurosurgeon that the trouble was due to a "neck and shoulder girdle injury," Windecker said.

In the letter informing him of the decision, T. G. Kirby, the board's claims officer in Vancouver in Vancouver, said "It is noted that your present problems are centred in your right shoulder. . . . This, it should be pointed out, is not part of your claim as your claim was accepted for injuries to your neck."

Windecker said: "If the neurosurgeon's examination referred to my left foot being hurt I could understand their attitude.

"But surely as far as any doctor is concerned the neck, shoulder and back are all interconnected?"

The board's attitude seemed to indicate his neck and shoulder were separate entities instead of only inches apart, he added.

Windecker said his injury still causes him discomfort and strain, especially during long classroom sessions and while driving.

A spokesman for the WCB said in Vancouver today that Windecker's appeal against the board's decision had been received, and a board of review will meet soon to consider his case in the light of the medical evidence available.

"He should have a decision within a week," the spokesman said.

Service Operations Ready for Christmas

Telephone operators, air line crews, ferry crewmen and others who serve the public are gearing themselves for the busy holiday season.

An army of 2,500 telephone operators will be on duty Christmas Day throughout British Columbia. For them it will be the busiest day of the year.

In Greater Victoria 168 operators will be working five, 5½ and six-hour shifts, manning every station.

A B.C. Telephone Company spokesman estimated today the local switchboards will handle 16,500 operator-helped calls that day (an increase of 2,500 over last year's) plus 31,000 direct-line out-of-town calls.

He said that in spite of the fact that every station will be manned there will be delays because of backup calls. Because Boxing Day falls on a Sunday this year, both Christmas Day and that day calls will be based on the less expensive Sunday rates.

As in past years, the telephone company is making out special emergency cards with the telephone bills this month.

The spokesman said he hoped that every resident would complete these with the numbers of all emergency contacts, such as fire and police departments, doctors and ambulance services.

"With every operator on duty working all out we don't want any person, who needs to make an emergency call, having to wait to get through to an operator," he added.

Extra air flights, both between Victoria and Vancouver and trans-Canada east to west and west to east, will help move the thousands moving to and from holidays at home.

Air Canada officials estimate the heavy passenger loads will start building Dec. 20 with Jan. 2, 3 and 4 hitting the peaks.

Except for Christmas Day itself, when the B.C. Ferries will restrict service between Victoria and Vancouver to a two-ship operation in order to allow crews to be home with their families, extra sailings have been scheduled every day from Dec. 18 to Jan. 4.

From Dec. 18 to 24 and from Dec. 26 to 28 there will be hourly sailings from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. between the Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay terminals.

On Dec. 29 and 30 the sailing times from Tsawwassen will be 7, 8, 9 and 11 a.m., noon, 1, 3, 5, 6, 7, 9 and 10 p.m. From Swartz Bay the schedule will be 7, 9, 10 and 11 a.m., 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 9 p.m.

Ask The Times

Q: I understand it will cost the city $60,000 to repair the ceiling of Memorial Arena. What has it cost to keep the ceiling in repair since it was built?—D.H.

A: The Memorial Arena has had two previous major repair jobs. The first cost $24,000 and treated the roof exterior. Two years ago the interior of the roof was repaired at a cost of $60,000.

Concert Saving $3,500

When 280 musicians take the stage tonight at the Royal Theatre their performance will represent a donation of $3,500 on behalf of Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

That is the amount of the fees being waived by guest pianist Ronald Turini, the soloists, the University of Victoria Chorus, the orchestra itself and maestro Laszlo Gati.

The repeat of the Sunday-Monday sold-out concerts has been undertaken in the hope that those who missed what has been described as a highlight of the season, those who would like a friend to hear it or the patrons who would enjoy a second visit, will take the opportunity to support the symphony.

One change has been made in the repeat program. It will include Turini playing the Rachmaninoff D minor Concerto and the great Kodaly Te Deum with University of Victoria chorus and guest soloists. But instead of the Violet Archer Fancare and Passacaglia, the concert will open with Mozart's Don Giovanni Overture.

Tickets will be available at the Royal before starting time of 8:30 p.m.

"There is nothing new in a symphony having financial problems," Turini said today.

"What is new is that the musicians of the orchestra should volunteer a free service as a start to a fund-raising campaign."

He said the symphony "is not just a good orchestra for this city, it is a very good orchestra in any context."

He said the musicians are "very flexible" and they watch the baton well.

Turini said he doesn't recall much about the orchestra when he played with it in 1961 "but there is no doubt that Laszlo Gati has done a great job."

Crash Victim Honored by Trail

A hiking and riding trail will be blazed this weekend in Central Saanich in memory of Gail Wichens, 30, victim of a traffic accident Nov. 24.

Dawn Ruthven of the Garden City Horsemen Club, Bruce Hardy and Phil Kisslinger of the Sierra Club of B.C. asked Central Saanich council Monday for permission to construct the Thompson trail as a joint effort involving outdoor and riding clubs with which Mrs. Wickens had been affiliated.

The 1½-mile link will connect Mount Newton Cross Road with John Dean Park, an area which Mrs. Ruthven says is ideal for riding and hiking.

About 250 persons will work this weekend clearing a trail, from which motorcycles will be prohibited. Other clubs involved are the Victoria Western Horsemen's Club, The Victoria and Saanich Pony Club and 4-H clubs.

Mrs. Wickens had five children in her car when it was in collision with another auto at Sayward and the Pat Bay Highway.

LOW RENT HOUSING URGED FOR JOBLESS

The Greater Victoria Low Income Group has suggested to Oak Bay council that low rental accommodation be built for single, unemployed people in Greater Victoria.

The request, in the form of a letter which council filed, suggested the project be undertaken by the four core municialities.

The society, which advocated rentals as low as $95 monthly, claimed the move was necessary because of a "verbal directive" from the provincial department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

This directive, the letter claimed, denied single, employable welfare recipients benefits if they live in outlying areas and do not move into the city where work would be more readily available.

Pollen Back Fighting

Mayoralty candidate Peter Pollen said today Mayor Haddock is using his aldermen to avoid fighting an open election campaign.

Pollen was replying to a statement of support for Haddock by Ald. Percy Frampton.

"Unfortunately Ald. Frampton who is not up for re-election is being used as a decoy to draw attention away from Mr. Haddock's complete lack of a program," Pollen said.

'BETTER SPENT'

"Ald. Frampton's time could be better spent fulfilling his responsibilities on council."

Pollen said Haddock "refuses to outline any kind of platform or to debate any issues."

"This is the way city council has been manoeuvred for the last two years — intelligent discussion or debate is avoided at all costs."

Pollen said the city "urgently needs a leader" to restore its position on regional government, to cope with acute shortage of hospital beds, to plan for Inner Harbor development, to establish a downtown businessmen's advisory committee, to develop shopping malls downtown, "before cars overwhelm people."

Pollen said the city "urgently needs a leader that will not only allow but encourage and participate in intelligent debate. The city needs a mayor with a knowledge of modern management who understands that intelligent use of money is just as important as collecting the tax money."

FACING CRISIS

He said Victoria is facing a crisis "due to this complete lack of leadership in defined objectives.

"I challenge him to publicly debate the issues. Why is he hiding — why the secrecy? The time has come for full disclosure. Secrecy must end."

Block Parent Plan

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The "block parent" program aims to make it as safe as possible for children to get to and from school.

One or two volunteer parents, usually mothers, are chosen along the routes to school. These volunteers should be at home during the half hour before and after school. It is desirable to have a parent on every block, says Rollin Schneider, extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Originally the program was developed to help protect against child molestation in the larger cities, says Schneider. The block parent plan has paid off and produced an extra dividend by helping child accident victims.

Posted on the inside of the front window or door is a sign identifying the home of a block parent. The children are told to go there should trouble occur.

Women's Groups Boosted

OTTAWA (CP)—Alene Holt, the new president of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association of Canada, strongly supports the concept of women's political organizations despite some controversy about this in the association itself.

A Peterborough, Ont., alderman for more than 17 years, Mrs. Holt told delegates to the association's annual meeting here recently that women's groups "bring in that many more people to the party because in many cases women want to work together."

Prefer Work

In an interview later, she said, however, that if women prefer to work in the main political organizations, they should be free to do so. Some women in Alberta, for instance, seemed to prefer this.

As national president, Mrs. Holt plans to work for greater co-operation with the provincial women's associations.

She has had first-hand experience at the provincial level, as president of the Ontario PC Women's Association since 1968.

Born in Stratford, Ont., Mrs. Holt spent some other school years there as well as in Chalk River and Windsor.

For many years Mrs. Holt, whose husband Maurice is a realty manager, has been active in voluntary service and charitable organizations.

She has done some radio work and during the summers of 1969-71 was hostess on a weekly television program in Peterborough, doing interviews about water pollution.

Mrs. Holt entered municipal politics in 1953.

Woman Mayor

In 1962 she was appointed Peterborough's first woman mayor for three months to complete a term for the incumbent, who resigned to take an appointed office.

In 1959, she was appointed an alternative delegate of the Canadian delegation to the general assembly of the United Nations and in 1968 received the centennial medal for valuable service to Canada.

Generation Gap? Unfortunately No

I don't know why people are always talking about a communication gap between the generations. Every child I know, and especially our own, begin communicating as soon as they get up in the morning and don't stop until their little voices crack at 8:30 p.m.

One reason you never see any more "25-words-or-less" contests is that anyone young enough to believe that they stand a chance of winning is completely unable to say even "Good morning" in less than 1,000 words.

For example, if you ask an adult how he enjoyed a particular movie he'll generally say, "The book was better" or "I slept through the last half." That's all I want to know, just whether or not it's worth stacking the dishes for.

Reconstructs Plot for You

But ask a child how he liked a movie and he immediately undertakes to reconstruct the whole plot for you, complete with actions and sound effects. If the movie in question happens to be a Western with a stagecoach robbery and a shoot-out at the old corral, this re-enactment could take the better part of a day, until you are forced to warn him that if he ambushes you from behind the sofa one more time, you'll clip him.

When you arrive five minutes after a television program has started the children rush to supply you with all the nuances of the plot, "The guy with the scar on his cheek is the brother of the man with the moustache and I think he's trying to . . ." By the time the children have finished filling you in on what you missed, the closing credits are running.

It's also a bit risky to question special projects. Last week our son built a Something out of a set of interlocking blocks. "What's that?" I asked, naively expecting a short answer, like "a firehouse." It turned out to be a supersonic submarine, which required a detailed explanation of the essential function of each of the 35 interlocking blocks.

It's not that I mind listening, but I arrived five minutes after my favorite television show started, and I still don't know who the guy was with the scar on his cheek.

. . . Make Sure It's Happy—and Safe—This Year

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

This Christmas Eve children will once again snuggle down into bed to wait for Santa Claus.

Santa will visit most homes with his bulging sack of toys. Unfortunately, Santa's sack of presents often turns out to be nothing but a pack of troubles for children and parents.

Nearly every parent has had to cope with a child's disappointment Christmas morning because a toy won't work, can't be assembled without a university degree in mechanical engineering or is just no fun.

Last Christmas, at least one 7-year-old was bitterly disappointed with a much-advertised toy. It looked wonderful in television advertisements and was the one big present he asked for.

"I wasted my Christmas," he said. He was old enough to realize it would be another year before he got another chance.

Manufacturers release hundreds of new toys each year for the Christmas market. Some are excellent, a great many are pure junk and some are potentially dangerous.

This year one manufacturer has put out a product called Silly String — ¼ mile of plastic fun. It is an aerosol can that squirts a thin stream of plastic that hardens on contact with the air.

Mrs. W. E. Rolls, provincial president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, said CAC executive was concerned that the product mught be inflammable.

Tests conducted Monday by the Victoria Fire Department showed Silly String is "combustible to a degree."

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said: "It is the kind of material that ignites, then melts and goes out."

He thinks there is a danger that a glob of the melted plastic could drip on someone and cause a burn.

"The hazard is the pressure can itself," Coates said. The can carries the usual warning about puncturing, incinerating or exposing to heat.

There is also a note to parents: "contents not intended for human consumption."

Tamara and Leann Gauthier choose dolls for presents

Mistakes Made

Parents buying toys for the first time can't be always blamed for mistakes made. Often they lack the time to check consumer reports, and the toy looks as good to them in the advertisement as it does to their child.

Parents with older children are usually a good source of information on toys. They have the experience and the scars to prove it — sometimes, so do their children.

People who work with children in day care centres, hospitals and kindergartens are also a reliable source of information. They know which toys can take it and provide hours of amusement and which ones cause nothing but frustration and temper tantrums.

Mrs. Jean Forrest, head of the Pink Ladies at Royal Jubilee, recommends the sturdy educational toys put out by a well-known manufacture of toys for pre-shoolers.

The Pink Ladies are a group of volunteers who amuse young patients on the up-to-8-year-old ward. Mrs. Forrest buys all the toys supplied by the group and is an expert on what kind of toys give lasting value.

"These educational toys are wonderful," Mrs. Forrest said. "They last at least a year with constant use by as many as 30 children a day.

Popular Toy

"We have a farm with wooden animals and a dolls' house that the children fight over all the time," she said.

Mrs. Forrest also recommends a building set that "you could jump on and not break" and a set of zoo animals with a variety of interchangable heads and limbs.

"The children love making these funny-looking animals," she said.

"These toys wash well and have no batteries," she said. "I won't allow a toy with batteries in the hospital." Mrs. Forrest thinks toys with batteries are frustrating for children. "Battery toys always run down at the wrong time," she said.

Mrs. Forrest thinks 90 per cent of the toys advertised on television aren't worth buying.

"The educational toys are expensive at first," she said. "But they last and the childre love them."

Mrs. Forrest recommends playdough for children whose parents are on a tight budget: "Children will play for hours with a bag of playdough, a toy rolling pin and a few cookie cutters," she said.

He suggested parents make the playdough out of 1 cup flour, ½ cup salt, ¼ cup cold water, 2 tablespoons of liquid shortening and harmless vegetable food coloring.

"Even if a child eats some it does no harm," she said.

At this time last year the U. S. Consumers Union fought a court battle to have the U.S. Food and Drug Administration remove eight toys considered particularly dangerous from stores before Christmas.

The FDA finally issued a list of 39 banned toys Dec. 21, 1970. During the past 12 months, the agency has tested nearly 1,000 toys. O fthese, it has banned or asked the manufacturer to redesign 250.

Manufacturers voluntarily corrected some toys. A popular toy called Etch-a-Sketch, widely advertised and sold in Victoria a couple of years ago, used to be made with a glass surface.

At least 22 children in the U.S. were injured when the glass shattered. The toy has now been redesigned with a shatter-proof plastic top.

This will protect children receiving the toy this Christmas but the old dangerous model may be lurking with the ghost of Christmas past at the bottom of Victoria toy boxes.

Problem Bad

Toy manufacturers have been described as "totally self-defensive and totally irresponsible." by Edward M. Swartz, the Ralph Nader of the toy industry. Swartz, author of Toys that Don't Care, thinks the problem of unsafe toys is as bad as ever.

"The FDA has moved against certain toys but others just as dangerous have replaced them," Swartz said.

The toy industry responded to Swartz's attack by putting his picture on a trade magazine with the caption, "Will the Spoiler Spoil Christmas for 1971?"

She's Not Your Daughter-in-Law

DEAR ABBY: My son, a college student, moved into an apartment with a fellow we knew.

Suddenly, he changed roommates. Only he exchanged the fellow for a girl! Now, it seems we have acquired a common-law daughter-in-law.

Undoubtedly, this is a problem many parents are facing today. There is no talk of marriage in the immediate future. They say, "After graduation, maybe, if we still feel the same about each other, then."

However, what are the practical aspects of the situation? Must we treat her like a daughter-in-law, inviting her to all family occasions? Our son is on a very tight budget, which necessitates our sending him bus fare for visits home. Do we have to send her bus fare so she can come home with him?

He is only 19, and not really ready for marriage, yet he seems to have acquired all the benefits of marriage without any of its responsibilities. Our financial contribution cannot be increased. The girl is paying her share, as a "roommate."

If you think this is a subject of interest we would appreciate comments from other readers involved in a similar situation.—Puzzled Mother.

DEAR PUZZLED: Nowhere in your letter do you express any disapproval of your 19-year-old son's living with his girl friend. Your only concern seems to be financial. Since your son can't afford to support a wife, and you can't afford to subsidize him, you are not obligated to give his current "roommate" all the considerations of a daughter-in-law.

DEAR ABBY: When I read your "Parent's Prayer," I wanted to throw up!

What the world needs today is not a prayer for parents asking for help in being better parents, but a prayer for kids asking for help in being better children.—A Grandma.

DEAR GRANDMA: Don't go away. Please read the following.

DEAR ABBY: I just loved your "Parent's Prayer." I think you ought to print it at least once a year. It would be especially appropriate around New Year's, when resolutions are being made. Thank you!—S.C.M.

What's your problem You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

New Heart Pacemaker Tested

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia University's engineering school has announced the development of a new electronic heart pacemaker that it said might operate for 25 years. Tests on humans are expected after Jan. 1.

The pacemaker is powered by nickel-cadmium batteries that can be recharged without surgery, every four to six months, by a small radio transmitter strapped to the patient's chest, Columbia said.

Recharging requires eight to 10 hours, the school said, and can be done overnight.

So far, the reliability of the electronics in the system has been tested only in five dogs, Columbia said, with three more animal tests scheduled for the next six weeks, to be followed by clinical tests in man.

The pacemaker was developed by Dr. Robert I. Bernstein, a professor of electrical engineering at Columbia's school of engineeering and applied science, and a team of Israeli researchers.

The pacemaker keeps the heart beating at a normal rhythm by administering electrical impulses when the heart's natural rhythm is defective because of heart disease.

Bernstein said the new pacemaker will probably cost under $1,000 about the cost of other pacemakers.

New Senator 'Better Behind Typewriter'

—CP Photo
Senator Renaude Lapointe

MONTREAL (CP) — Renaude Lapointe says she had to be coaxed to accept the job as Canada's newest woman senator, but once the decision was made it was the task ahead, not the honor, that seemed overwhelming.

"I couldn't believe it when Prime Minister Trudeau approached me," she recalled in an interview soon after being sworn in Nov. 18.

"I had to remind him I had no university education and that I was a very, very poor public speaker."

"I'm better behind a typewriter, you know," she added.

Miss Lapointe has spent most of her career staring at a typewriter ribbon. In the last 31 years, her jobs have ranged from legal stenographer to editorial writer for La Presse, North America's largest French-language daily, and member of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations.

Lacks Confidence

Despite her success in what are traditionally male fields of endeavor, however, Miss Lapointe admits she has always suffered from a lack of self-confidence. "It was others who pushed me into things. I was brought up in Disraeli, a small town in the Eastern Townships southtast of Montreal and my family moved to Quebec City in 1933. I got my first job in a lawyer's office because the lawyer was the brother of a nun who taught me music."

Her chief appeal for the lawyer, she remembers, was that he was representing a musician and needed a stenographer who knew about music.

In 1939 came an opportunity to work for the Quebec newspaper Le Soleil, and again there was the characteristic hesitation to accept the job.

"I was convinced I couldn't do that job either. Perhaps that was why I refused to accept the $12 a week they were offering me although I was only being paid $10 a week by the lawyer. Anyway, when Le Soleil raised their offer to $13 a week, I felt I couldn't refuse.

"I didn't think I would be any good, but I stayed in journalism for 31 years."

During the 10 years at Le Soleil, Renaude Lapointe also served as Quebec correspondent for Time and Life magazines and reported for the International Service of the CBC.

Ofthese jobs, she said: "I had to be talked into them too. I never thought I could represent Time."

In 1959, she moved to Montreal to become the first woman in general news reporting for La Presse and stayed to become its first woman editorial writer.

But in 1970, she was forced into early retirement and describes the experience as "a blow from which I am still recovering."

"It seemed one day I was writing editorials and the next day I was being told I had to take early retirement. There wepe many of us forced to go in this way. I went into a deep depression and it took months to pull out of it."

Spirits Revived

Her spirits revived, however, with an assignment as information officer for the department of Indian affairs and northern development and a post on the UN commission for social, humanitarian and cultural affairs.

She leaves the UN Dec. 21 to take up senatorial duties but, says of her career: "I remain a journalist. With me and journalism, it is until death do us part."

Miss Lapointe attributes her new appointment to the "aggressive" editorials she wrote.

She expects to represent women, especially her French-Canadian colleagues, in the Senate but not as an ardent feminist.

"I always seemed to be too busy with assignments to be a very active anything."

Furthermore, "I don't like segregation; I never have."

"I was treated as an equal by men in the newspaper profession. I didn't have to break down any barriers because I never came across any. I have to admit I worked like a man. I never expected any favors or privileges because I was a woman."

Miss Lapointe says she feels "low" when she considers the achievements of Senator Therese Casgrain.

"I started reading the manuscript she just finished and I felt lower and lower as I read it. I will have to do so much to try and fill her shoes."

Poison Outbreak

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A number of outbreaks of food poisoning traced to meals on commercial airline flights has prompted the National Centre for Disease Control to urge doctors to report individual cases to state health authorities.

Eleven outbreaks of food poisoning have been attributed to airline meals since January, 1970, said Dr. Andrew Taylor of the centre. None was reported in 1969 and only one in 1968, he said.

Taylor said studies of the situation are dependent on local reports of individual illnesses, since passengers usually have scattered before becoming ill. The incubation period on some types of food poisoning is as long as 24 hours.

Airlines face unusual hazards, Taylor said, since delays in flights or delays in loading food from caterers can result in food being held in conditions neither hot nor cold enough to prevent the growth of bacteria.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1971
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Confusion may appear to reign. Key is to ride with emotional tide. Let others handle details. Your mission should be to study potential. Avoid the petty. Think ahead. See various possibilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Some desired changes may be subject to delay. Be willing to wait until all facts are in. Leave speculation to others. Be positive that your information is factual. Discard gossip, rumors.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Home influences are strong. There is dissension, but it is of temporary nature. Know this and don't panic. You are asked to perform extra duties. Some are only too willing to take advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Confusion could exist in connection with short journeys, relatives and neighbors. Seek harmony. Avoid participating in malicious gossip. Taurus and Libra persons lend helping hand.

LEO (Jluy 23-Aug. 22): Perceive motives. Find reasons why. Don't take events — or persons — for granted. See in light of reality. Hold off on money deals, agreements. More information is required. Patience now is your ally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You get expression of appreciation from surprise source. Cycle is one in which you make material gains. You organize and build. You get house in order—in many ways Adhere to principles. Aim toward goal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish rather than initiate projects. Popularize concepts, products. Work behind scenes to get program going in smooth manner. Relatives may be well-meaning but misinformed. Respond accordingly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money and friendship are now like water and oil: They don't mix. Word to wise here should be sufficient. You require new contacts, fresh viewpoint. Stress greater independence, originality.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Look beneath surface indications. Your feeling about one who promotes scheme is apt to be correct. Let caution be your key. Don't rush, despite those who urge a quick decision. Heed your own counsel.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Hold off on travel, if practical. Messages tend to be garbled. Check reservations, directions and instructions. Have alternative methods available. Sagittarius individual can set fine example.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Money surprise due. May not be completely to your liking — but potential is favorable. Be aware of apparent minor points. Check fine print and read between lines. Be specific — get commitment in writing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lie low; play waiting game. Let others reveal their plans. Be a careful, shrewd observer. You learn lessons which can spell future gains. Someone is trying to convey message. Be perceptive.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY what has been blocking progress is due to be removed. You are a frank individual, a natural executive; you do better when working for yourself than for others. Recent social whirl resulted in valuable contacts. Utilize them.

Big Deficit For Schools

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board will be faced with a New Year $254,370 deficit in its provisional budget.

Trustees said Monday evening that although their provisional budget for 1972 has been set at $4,690,392 the gross operating allowance from the provincial government is only $4,436,022.

Included in the government allowance was a rise of 6.5 per cent for teachers and administration salary increases. The salaries are under negotiation.

Acting school board chairman Dick Christmas commented that the "new board wmill have a sizeable problem to start off the New Year."

GENERAL MOTORS PRESENTS THE LATEST WORD IN SMALL CARS...

FIRENZA SL SPORT COUPE

THE 1972 FIRENZAS ARE HERE WITH FIVE WAYS TO GO SMALL!

With the addition of the exciting SL Sport Coupe, Firenza has the perfect small car for every economy buyer. Whether you're doing the daily supermarket run, commuting to the office or just looking for a way to economize without compromising your driving pleasure, Firenza has it!

Small car. Big choice. Firenza offers two 2-door sedans and a 4-door family sedan, all with styling you can be really proud of. Prefer a wagon? Firenza's swing-up tailgate is fully counterbalanced; cargo area has protective vinyl-covered matting; cargo capacity is 62.3 cubic feet with the rear seat down. Roof rack is standard.

Then there's the new SL Sport Coupe! It looks like what it is—the latest word in small cars. Very sleek.

3-Speed Automatic. That's the way a lot of people like it—and especially the ladies—so Firenza has a 3-speed automatic extra-cost option available and it's a real smooth operator. If you'd rather take command of the action, you'll stay with Firenza's standard 4-on-the-floor manual shift.

1975 c.c. Engine. To start the action, a big 1975 c.c. power plant is standard on every Firenza. More than enough power to help move you easily into fast-moving freeway traffic.

To stop the action, all Firenza models come with power front disc brakes. Standard, at no extra cost.

HERE'S WHAT YOU GET!

Firenza 2-door Sedan—standard features

● 1975-c.c. overhead cam engine ● uses no-lead, low-lead or regular gasolines—sparingly ● 4-on-the-floor transmission ● power front disc brakes ● 32.2 foot turning radius ● rack-and-pinion steering ● automatic choke ● 12.2 cu. ft. trunk ● 62 amp. hr. battery ● high-capacity heater and defroster ● upper-level ventilation ● twin front bucket seats ● locking glove box ● full-width parcel shelf ● inside hood lock release ● door pull straps ● choice of 10 exterior Magic-Mirror colors including five bright metallics.

Firenza SL Sedans, Coupe and Wagon

In addition to all the standard Firenza features, the SL Sedans (2-door and 4-door), Sport Coupe and Wagon come with:

Firenza SL Station Wagon

The Wagon also has such distinctive standard equipment as:

● 62.3 cu. ft. cargo capacity with rear seat down ● aerodynamic styling that helps keep rear window dust-free ● fully-counterbalanced hatchback tailgate for easy access ● roof rack for extra luggage ● cargo area light ● vinyl-covered matting in cargo area.

Your dealer can fill you in on the complete list of standard features and advise you about extra-cost equipment such as a three-speed automatic transmission specially developed for Firenza.

GM HAS BEEN TOUGHER ON FIRENZA THAN YOU'LL EVER BE!

General Motors proved out Firenza every step of the way from drawing board to the moment you put your hands on the wheel. It's tough enough to take on any road or weather condition. It's designed for Canadian drivers.

Value for your money. Firenza is powerful, reliable and strong. You get room that doesn't keep reminding you you're in a little car. Luxuries you thought you might have to give up to go small. It even has a trunk that's a real trunk . . . 12.2 cu. ft. in Firenza sedans.

General Motors value. Firenza is built and backed by General Motors and has GM-designed safety equipment and an exhaust and evaporative emission control system.

Whatever your reasons for considering a small car, consider Firenza. As your first car, your next new car, or your family's second car—the latest word in small cars may be the best news you've ever heard.

DRIVE IT...

Firenza is fun to drive. Ask your dealer to let you spend some time on the road with GM's lowest-priced car. You'll agree Firenza is a real going concern.

And a demonstration will show you some of the reasons why Firenza has earned the General Motors Mark of Excellence. It's a quality car that's challenging the small economy class with a great deal of confidence.

NATIONWIDE SERVICE.

As a Firenza owner, your travels will never take you far from quickly available service. Your own dealer is one of more than 500 Firenza dealers the length and breadth of Canada and they all have ready access to a GM Parts Depot. It's nice to know you're among friends wherever you go. And in your new Firenza, you go in good company.

Some of the equipment illustrated or mentioned is optional at extra cost.

Housing Bylaw Flaw Snags Town House Project

A possible flaw in Oak Bay's town-house construction bylaw and mixed reactions from neighbors stalled passage Monday of a bylaw that would have allowed 10 town-houses to be built in the 300 block of Foul Bay Road.

Ken Murphy, 117 Barkley, headed the opposition to developer John Fitterer's town-house proposal at the public hearing held on a bylaw that would rezone the five lots from single-family homes to town houses.

Asserting that Fitterer had given "no substantial reasons" to support his contention that construction of single-family houses on the site would be uneconomic, Murphy said:

"If you rezone this area you have two very bad alternatives. First of all, you have spot zoning, which is not desirable at all.

PRECEDENT

"Secondly, if you make this a town-house zoning area some developers can come along and ask for other lots to be rezoned. You couldn't very well turn them down when you've already permited this."

Answering statements made by other residents that they would rather have town houses there than face the possibility of high-rises in the future, Murphy said:

"People in single-family areas should not have to face such alternatives — this type of development is better placed in areas zoned for apartments or town houses."

Murphy's stand that the rezoning not be permitted was supported by Dr. E. A. Allen, 119 Barkley, and Mrs. Ruth Mitchell, 339 Foul Bay.

Chief spokesman for those favoring the project was R. C. Holden, 122 Barkley.

He said, "The biggest fear of neighbors is that apartments will go in there. Your council wouldn't allow it but you can't speak for other councils."

The possibility of a loophole in the town house bylaw was voiced by Ald. Alan Hoey after architect Clive Campbell said that he was unaware that the development did not conform to the town-house regulations.

WINDOW LACK

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White pointed out that some of the proposed units were less than the required 20 feet apart.

Campbell told council that there were no "habitable windows" on the walls involved and that the bylaw did not say anything about walls with no such windows being 20 feet apart.

White said the intent of the ruling, however, was to give a 20-foot space.

Hoey said the regulation, as now written, could be a flaw that would provide developers with loopholes.

It was decided to table the bylaw until council members could study the situation again and have the town-house regulations re-examined by council's zoning committee.

Developer John Mace appeared before council to present tentative plans for development of the block bounded by Windsor, Currie, Goodwin and Newport, adjacent to Windsor Park.

Mace's original proposal to build two nine-storey towers on the site was defeated after a vociferous crowd opposed them at an earlier public hearing. Mace said the scaled-down plans would be a joint venture by himself, the owners of the stores on Newport in the block, and Texaco Canada Ltd., which owns the corner of Windsor and Newport.

The plans include two five-storey buildings, one on Newport and the other on Goodwin, the Newport structure having 11,000 square feet of retail space on the ground floor.

Texaco would have a service station on the corner—"They've given us a good deal and want the ability to sell their products" — and the complex would be centered with an 80-foot wide courtyard.

Mace said the two largest buildings would be 45 feet high.

When Ald. John Goult asked if the plans could be adjusted so that the building on Newport was lower in height, he was told this could be done by raising the height of the one on Goodwin or by reducing the site coverage.

White will be asked to study the developer's plans and make a report to the zoning committee.

Vancouver Snaps Win

A total of $1,570 has been won by two lower mainland photographers in the B.C. Centennial '71 color photograph contest.

Laurie Wallace, general chairman of the committee, announced this week that Ho Tung of Vancouver and Barrie Jeffries of North Vancouver were the top winners.

Visitors, residents, amateurs and professional competed for a total of $6,200 in prize money.

Ho Tung was placed first and second in the centennial event and received five honorable mentions. He received a total of $800.

Jeffries took a first place, third place and two honorable mentions in the scenic class, winning a total of $770.

Training Your Plants Through Ancient Art

If a balcony apartment or condominium dwelling figures in your plans for the future you the gardener of today, will be a lot happier if you have some of your treasured plants to take with you.

The ancient arts of bonsai and the training of plants to "standards" will help you in this project.

Both of these practices must be started well ahead of the time you need the plants to be decorative.

Bonsai will enable you to enjoy some of your choicest treasures for the rest of your life, and they may well become a valued part of your estate.

The standard plants will be less long-lived but certainly add an unusual decorative note which may be either gracefully drooping or globular, always at a height to give variation of outline to a balcony planting.

Most of us average gardeners will settle for tubbed specimens of shrubs with moderate growth rate, so they won't outgrow the limited size of their containers in too short a period.

These may be favorite shrubs at present growing in the garden; something a bit different grown from seed to flowering stage in eight to 10 years; or a cutting successfully rooted against all advice in propagation charts.

Whatever it is, if not too large now, nor of rapid growth (half-inch yearly is a good rate for conifers), why not make plans to put it into a long-lasting container in a year or two?

This will give you time to begin root pruning preparation. In April next year, thrust a shovel down for its full depth on a semi-circle of the root area of the shrub — half-way around.

Into this slit, pour a fine mixture of dampened sand, peat and compost. Repeat for the remaining half circle in late August.

New roots will form in the new fine mixture if sufficient watering is given in late spring and through summer.

Repeat the operation the following year; however, at that time, lift the whole ball and reset, surrounding with more fine mixture. In two years you can put the complete rootball without further disturbance into a suitable container.

Training common garden plants into standards is a fascination for some gardeners.

Lavender, the zoned bedding geranium, fuchsia, rose, lilac, almost any kind of shrubby hydrangea, cotoneaster, the evergreen box, yew and privet have all been grown as standards.

I have even seen a photo of Santolina chamaecyparissus, the lowly lavender-cotton, trained to a four-foot standard, its round grey ball of fine foliage a delightful foil to the green and gold shrubs around it.

It's all very well to buy a complete set of new plants at the time of making the move to the apartment, but gardeners who have already spent 60 years or more in close touch with the soil and the growing of plants need the satisfaction of continuing with those of their own production.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, our South declarer fulfilled a game contract that should have been defeated. What was the defensive error that permitted South to emerge victorious? Neither side vulnerable. South deals.

♣ A J 10 7

SOUTH
♡ K J 10
◇ A K 6
♣ K 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

The five of clubs was played from dummy on the opening lead, and East won the trick with his ace. He returned a low diamond, South's king winning.

After the ace and king of trumps had picked up the adversely-held trumps, South led a club to his king. Dummy was then entered via the trump ten, and on the queen of clubs South discarded his losing diamond. In time, he lost two hear tricks. Thus he fulfilled his contract. What was the defensive error that enabled declarer to come home safely.

It should have been apparent to East that West's deuce of clubs opening lead was a fourth-from-the-highest lead if it were a singleton, then declarer had the K-8-6-4-3, which was highly unlikely on the bidding), Hence declarer had two clubs in his hand. (West had three cards higher than the deuce—and there are none lower).

If West were leading away from the king, then the play of the club ace couldn't be right, since the ten-spot would accomplish the same purpose. And, if South possessed the club king, then the play of the ace would make winners out of both the queen and the king (as happened).

And so, on the opening club lead, East should have played the ten-spot, not the ace. The trick would then have been won by South's king. When West would subsequently obtain the lead in hearts, he would return another club, entrapping dummy's queen. All declarer would now make would be one club trick. Defended properly, the defenders would have scored two hearts, one club, and one diamond.

And further, if East thought that West's club deuce were a singleton, then upon winning his ace, he should have returned a club for West to ruff. The fact that he didn't surely indicates that East knew that West had led his fourth-highest. Thus, no matter how one looks at it, East's play of the club ace at trick one had to be wrong.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

At this time we would like to express our thanks and gratitude to Dr. Perera, the staff and nurses at Medical (2), Veterans' Hospital, and to the ambulance drivers for their kind services during the protracted illness and passing of a beloved husband and father, Thomas Barrow. To Pro-Pat Legionaires and Reverend Roberts whose words and consolation meant so much to us and to the many kind friends whose cards and flowers were so comforting, our sincere thanks.— Wife Jean and family.

The family of the late Muriel Jones, beloved wife and mother, sincerely thank friends and relatives for their many expressions of sympathy, cards and flowers; also our thanks to the Central Saanich Volunteer Fire Department. — Mr. Robert Jones and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

JOWETT—In cherished and loving memory of our dear Mum, Dec. 7, 1956. And our brother, John, Dec. 9, 1930.
Close to our hearts,
You will always stay.
Loved and remembered
Day by day.
—Sadly missed by Kathleen, Lloyd and Joan, Betty, Gary and Jennifer.

MABBOTT, Lewis C.—In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away Dec. 7th, 1967.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all
And though the years be many or few
They are filled with remembrance, dear of you.
—Always remembered by Doris.

DEAR JOHN
You should have been at the Traders' Furniture Auction last Wednesday nite. I was really amazed at the large selection of furniture and appliances on auction and boy, did some of the items ever go cheap! See you at the next Traders' Auction, at 715 Finlayson St., on Wednesday nite 7 p.m., Dec. 15th.
Love,
LEONA.

BIG PROBLEM FOR SINGER

HASTINGS, England (CP)) — Singer Beryl Bryden has been confronted with a hefty problem after a thief stole her 50-inch bikini top from a washing line.

Beryl, who purchased the extra-large bikini in Germany, does not think she'll find a replacement bra in Britain. A policewoman suggested that a couple of children may have committed the theft — to make hammocks.

PLUS $500
For the month of January. Draw will be made January 31.
PLUS ANOTHER $500
For month of February. Draw will be made February 28.

The mechanics of this draw are very, very simple. No fuss or bother with having to fill in your name, address, etc., on your free tickets. All tickets are numbered with corresponding stub numbers. All stubs will be placed in our $500 cash barrel.

Every time you come in and make a purchase under $3.00 you will receive one free ticket.

MAKE A PURCHASE OF OVER $3.00
you will receive TWO free tickets.

On the last day of each month one stub will be drawn from the barrel by someone who is independent of our service station.

The number drawn will be posted prominently in our front window. It will also be advertised in large display ad in this newspaper.

By making several purchases of gasoline, oil, etc., you will accumulate several tickets. One can easily be worth $500 CASH, so don't discard them. Watch for winning number for first $500. Display ad will appear in early January, or phone us if you wish.

NAME ELUDES NEW CHURCH

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The general commission on church union reached the end of its agenda almost 24 hours ahead of schedule and adjourned Monday night, but the name of the new church proposed for the Anglican, United and Christian (Disciples of Christ) churches still is undecided.

The commissioners received a list of 86 possible names Monday.

Selections included Anglited Unican, Our Resource, The One in Christ Love and Truth Church in Canada, The Congressional Church in Canada, The Holy Catholic Church in Canada, and The Jesus People in Canada.

A subcommittee proposed that the commission vote on two, The Christian Community in Canada, its own suggestion, and Church of Christ in Canada, which was favored at the last commission meeting.

After several commissioners objected to the two choices on the grounds that no convenient short form could be derived from them, it was admitted that no consensus could be immediately arrived at.

Force Out On Language

MONTREAL (CP) — No government in history has been able to force people to learn a second language, Francois Cloutier, Quebec cultural affairs minister, said Monday.

And the Quebec government is not about to coerce the province's English-speaking population into learning French, he added.

Mr. Cloutier made the statements in an interview to dispel what he referred to as the "police state" interpretation placed on a program of his department to promote the use of French as the province's working language.

The program involves an "equipe d' intervention" that would, with the co-operation of company officials, work out a plan for the gradual expansion of French-language usage through such things as employee language classes and wholesale translation of English technological terms.

When the program was announced last month "equipe d'intervention" was variously translated as strike force, action team and intervention team. Mr. Cloutier says the proper translation is "task force."

WILL BE NO COERCION

"There will be no question of coercion," he said. Any company will be free to accept or reject a government request to participate in the program under the department's Office of the French Language.

The connotation of coercion is quite natural but not justified, Mr. Cloutier said. The program already is under way, and no force has been needed.

Six companies — Domtar, General Electric, Canadian Industries Ltd., Canada Packers, British Petroleum and the Royal Bank — have all volunteered to work with the task force.

The crux of the government's policies is to strike a "very delicate balance" between economic and cultural matters and between French- and English-speaking extremists, the minister said.

New industry will continue to come into Quebec, attracted by the lure of profits, and French workers will still have to learn English to ensure their mobility within the economy.

"We are not going to please the French-speaking extremists and the English-speaking extremists. A reasonable policy is never accepted by both ends of public opinion."

The people of Quebec have "clearly expressed" that such a program is needed," he said.

"If we consider the economic point of view without having any cultural preoccupations, the only outcome would be quick assimilation of the French-speaking group."

A pilot project in St. Romuald, near Quebec City, will cost the provincial government and Golden Eagle Canada Ltd. "a few hundred thousand dollars" to carry out a training program for 300 workers at the company's new oil refinery.

Credit Unions Win

OTTAWA (CP) — A high-pressure lobby conducted by co-operatives and credit unions paid off Monday when the government announced last-minute concessions to those institutions under its new tax bill.

Spokesmen for credit unions and co-ops have succeeded in recent months in gaining heavy Commons support for their claims that the bill would cause them undue hardship.

Twice during October the government brought in amendments designed to appease them. But members from all parties — including Liberal back-benchers — continued to apply pressure.

Finally on Monday, two days before the House stops considering the bill at committee stage because of a government debate-limiting motion put through last Thursday, the government came through with what the co-ops and credit unions were seeking.

CO-OPS WON'T PAY

As a result, the co-ops — which originally were going to feel a bigger tax bite under this bill — will not have to pay income tax at all on transactions involving their members.

As groupings of individuals seeking to help each other, co-ops seldom wind up a year with income or profits in the normal sense. If there is anything extra left over, after meeting expenses, it can be paid out to the co-op members as a dividend.

Present tax law uses a standard based on the capital a co-op employs in its operations for the year. At least three per cent of the capital generated in a year is subject to tax now and the original proposal in the new bill was to boost this to five per cent.

The latest government proposal is to ditch this capital-employed yardstick. Instead, co-opes will be required to withold 15 per cent of the money they pay out in dividends to a member if this is over $100 in any tax year.

ALLOWS 2 COURSES

In the hands of the recipient, the dividend could be treated in two ways. If the dividend related to the recipient's business, it would be counted in his income for tax purposes. If not, it would be tax-free. Anyone not liable to tax on the dividend would be able to get a later refund for the portion withheld.

The system is aimed at distinguishing between those investing in co-ops as a business and the average member who holds only a small share in a co-op organized by a group of people seeking to help themselves.

Allan MacEachen, government House leader who introduced the latest amendments, said the withholding step "will permit the government to administer the system efficiently and yet obtain the appropriate result depending on the character of the patronage dividend in the hands of the recipient."

Credit unions, which now do not pay income tax as institutions, would have been required to pay under the bill's original proposals on a similar sort of capital-employed basis. The latest proposed changes scrapped this.

Mr. MacEachen said the amendments, explained only in general and due to be brought forward in detailed form today, would give credit unions more access to steps available to other businesses to achieve a lower rate of tax on income.

Ordinary businesses can trim net income through use of dividend payments, staying eligible for tax at the rate of about 25 per cent rather than the full rate of about 50 per cent.

Mayoralty candidate Bill Scott has day in court.

Harshly Treated by Police, Arrested Candidate Claims

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

Mayoralty candidate Bill Scott charged today he was given unduly harsh treatment by city police after his arrest at the Royal Theatre Monday night on a charge of assault by trespass.

Scott, 73, pleaded not guilty in provincial court this morning. He was remanded to Jan. 3 to fix a date for trial.

Scott said after his court appearance he was stripped of his shoes and forced to stand in police cells for two hours before bail was arranged by his lawyer, Rod Taylor.

The candidate also said he was not given an opportunity to count the cash on his person before it was taken by police. The amount involved was about $400, he said.

Scott was arrested at the theatre after he arranged an impromptu cultural debate with another candidate, Foster Isherwood, who was handing out election leaflets prior to a benefit performance of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Scott challenged Isherwood's cultural credentials, first by reciting Shakespeare and then by singing an operatic aria.

When police arrived, Scott said he greeted them by singing Gilbert and Sullivan's "A Policeman's Lot Is Not a Happy One."

Taylor asked Judge William Ostler if the case could be disposed of quickly, "before a certain contest this Saturday."

Ostler noted that because a number of witnesses would be called in the case, the Crown could not reasonably be expected to be ready to proceed today — although an unexpected snarl in the calendar would have provided the necessary court time.

Scott also claimed police refused him permission to call his lawyer, a doctor or Mayor Haddock.

The candidate has demanded a hearing before the police commission on his charges. He said Mayor Haddock had already apologized for the incident.

Scott noted that should he win in Saturday's election he would, as the city's chief magistrate, be conducting the commission inquiry himself.

Trudeau More Optimistic On Removal of Surcharge

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau returned from Washington today, expressing optimism that the United States would withdraw its 10 per cent import surcharge if a meeting of the Group of Ten later this month is successful.

Speaking at a news conference in the U.S. capital following two meetings Monday with President Nixon, Trudeau earlier said that U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally was hopeful that the upcoming monetary meeting in Washington would produce some world currency alignments.

This, he said, would be a first step towards removal of the surcharge imposed by Nixon last Aug. 15 as a U.S. economy-boosting measure. Trudeau said he did not want to speak for another government, but his impression at the discussions with Nixon was that the United States seemed "willing and anxious to remove the surcharge."

He said however if the December session is not conclusive, negotiators will have another chance to reach some sort of agreement in January.

During the 45-minute news conference Trudeau said his talks with Nixon indicated that the United States is respecting Canadian identity and has not "stopped loving us."

NO HEADLINES

The prime minister said the Canadian delegation discussed many bilateral problems but assured newsmen that there will be "no headlines this morning" as far as reporting of any substantial agreements. He said he and Nixon made "another step in over-all progress" but repeated that there was nothing concrete.

Regarding the 1965 Canadian-American auto pact, Trudeau said Canada did not press any new concessions to the United States and that his talks on the subject with Nixon were of a general nature.

"We let the slugging go on in the other room," Trudeau said, referring to more detailed talks on the same subject between Finance Minister Edgar J. Benson, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and their U.S. counterparts. Con-

Terror Fire Kills Sally Ann Worker

BELFAST (CP)—A woman Salvation Army worker was killed and more than 600 workers are jobless today in the aftermath of a terror bombing that ignited Belfast's worst fire in many years, destroying an entire block of buildings in the city centre.

The Associated Press said it was the worst fire in a decade; Reuter said it was believed to be the biggest since the wartime German blitz against Northern Ireland's capital city.

The blaze came at the end of the 50th anniversary of the treaty partitioning Ireland into the Irish Free State—Eire—which later became a republic, and Northern Ireland.

Security authorities blamed the Irish Republic Army for the bombs which Monday night ripped into a six-floor carpet factory.

Hotel Fire

WINNIPEG (CP) — A two-alarm fire damaged the 210-room Fort Garry Hotel of Canadian National Railways early today, sending one man to hospital and trapping three persons on the upper floors for an hour. More than 90 guests, including federal Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, were evacuated from the 58-year-old building and taken to other hotels.

Deal Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American officials have agreed to deliver 12 to 18 A4 Skyhawk jet warplanes to Israel starting late in 1972, the Washington Post said today.

Slide Resumes

26 Miners Die

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI) — An underground explosion ripped through the Zungwini coal mine, 13 miles north of Durban, today. Mine officials said at least 26 workers were killed and 17 injured in the blast.

Sharp Increase In B.C. Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — The chill winds of approaching winter pushed the jobless total up to 503,000 last month, a sharp increase for the month but about average for this time of year, Statistics Canada reported today.

While unemployment in British Columbia jumped to 7.1 per cent last month from 5.7 in October, it remained short of the 8.6-per-cent rate recorded in November last year.

As expected because of the season, there were sharply fewer jobs available in agriculture and construction. And while employment in the trade industries improved, there were more layoffs in manufacturing.

The 503,000 without jobs at mid-November compared with 447,000 at mid-October and 476,000 at mid-November last year. An estimated 46,000 workers left the labor market in November this year, reducing the total labor force to 8.65 million from nearly 8.7 million in October.

This meant that the actual rate of unemployment as a percentage of the total labor force rose last month to 5.8 from 5.1 in October. It was 5.7 per cent in November last year.

SAYS TREND DOWN

However, Statistics Canada said the underlying trend of unemployment edged down a bit last month.

Taking its actual survey figures and modifying them to reflect the trend of unemployment without the seasonal factors such as the approaching winter, the statistics bureau said the seasonally-adjusted rate declined to 6.6 in November from 6.7 in October.

It had reached a peak of 7.1 in September after dropping to 6.3 last July.

Economists normally look to this seasonally-adjusted rate to indicate how well the country is performing. Month-to-month actual rates can vary widely between high unemployment in the depths of winter and lower jobless figures at the peak of summer activity.

The bureau reported the number of workers employed declined to 2.15 million from 8.25 million in October. This was slightly larger than an average month-to-month decline in the number of workers with jobs, and most of the decline was seasonal in nature.

Concerning the jobless, the bureau said there was an above-average increase in unemployment among men aged 25 and over, while the increased jobless numbers among men and women aged 24 and younger was usual for this time of year.

The figures are estimates based on a Statistics Canada survey of 30,000 households, taken for the week ended Nov. 13.

SHOTS CHASE CANADIAN PLANE

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian Hercules transport plane turned back from a second attempt to land at Dacca in East Pakistan today after anti-aircraft fire was spotted from ships in the Bay of Bengal, a defence department spokesman said.

He said the anti-aircraft fire was close enough to cause concern to the Hercules crew. The plane was not hit and nobody was injured.

Eastern Area Ours—India

Times News Services

India claimed sweeping victories in East Pakistan today, saying the Pakistani army was in retreat. It called for the Pakistanis to surrender there. But in the West, India admitted setbacks in Kashmir.

India abandoned Chamb, in western Kashmir, 30 miles from the major Indian city of Jammu, a spokesman said.

But in East Pakistan, India claimed the Pakistani army was cut off by air and sea and Gen. Sam Maneckshaw, Indian chief of staff, told the 80,000 Pakistini fighting there:

Radio Pakistan announced that President Yahya Khan had asked two prominent politicians to form a civilian government. No date was set. Nurual Amin, a rightist from East Pakistan, was offered the post of prime minister with former foreign minister Zulfika Ali Bhutto, leader of the leftist People's Party, as deputy prime minister.

Meanwhile at the United Nations the General Assembly began emergency debate on the Indo-Pakistani war today with Argentina proposing an immediate ceasefire and withdrawal of troops of both sides.

The war issue was sent to the General Assembly Monday night after Soviet vetoes twice blocked similar proposals in the security council.

And in Washington the United States announced today its decision to channel all further peacemaking efforts in the India-Pakistan war through the United Nations General Assembly.

RAPID ADVANCE

A Pakistini spokesman in Rawalpindi said the Pakistani forces were advancing rapidly in Kashmir.

The Chamb sector is in southwestern Kashmir, between the Indian city of Jammu, and Sailkot in West Pakistan. It is ideal for tank manoeuvres and was the scene of heavy fighting in the 1965 war between India and Pakistan for the still-disputed territory of Kashmir.

The Indian spokesman said Pakistini forces have put heavy pressure on the Chamb sector and Poonch to the north since last Wednesday.

"The main activity has been in those two sectors of Jammu and Kashmir," he said, "and they have repeatedly tried to capture Poonch."

The spokesman added that the purpose of the Pakistani attack in the Chamb sector was to cut the New Delhi-Kashmir highway, which parallels the border for nearly 30 miles and runs through the Chamb areas.

Poonch is a major link between the Pakistan capital of Rawalpindi and Srinagar, the Indian capital of Kashmir.

ROBOT ON MARS

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union parachuted the first scientific robot on to Mars but its television signals stopped after only "brief" operation amid hurricane-force dust storms, the Tass news agency said Tuesday.

The landing took place five days ago, but Tass did not report it until Tuesday. The report gave no reason for the delay, and it gave no hint of what caused the robot to fail after an apparent successful soft landing.

The U.S. Mariner 9 photographic probe has reported that a dust storm is raging over most of the planet's surface. Tass said wind speed on Mars may be as high as 300 miles an hour.

Tass said the Mars robot broke away from its Mars mother ship on Dec. 2 after an 188-day journey from earth. It parachuted to a Martian plain in the southern hemisphere between the regions of Electris and Phaetonic.

Atom Plant Bombed

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Two bombs exploded at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center today, causing what officials estimated at up to $100,000 damage to the world's largest device for atomic particle research.

There were no injuries and no radiation leaks, officials said.

Firm May Face Report Charge

A cemetery company under provincial government trusteeship for almost two years has failed to file an annual report with the provincial companies office for the past six years.

Colwood Improvement Company Ltd. which runs the Colwood Cemetery Company, Hatley Memorial Gardens and Colwood Burial Park on Sooke Road, hasn't filed an annual report since 1965.

The Companies Act requires annual meetings and annual reports and failure to observe the act can result in fines of up to $500 a day.

The Public Utilities Commission appointed a trustee-administrator to take charge of the company in March, 1969, citing shortages in cemetery perpetual care and maintenance funds as the reason.

Other related cemetery companies in Port Alberni and Kelowna were also put under trusteeship. These have been filing annual reports as required by law.

A companies office spokesman said Monday the Colwood Improvement Company would be sent a formal letter requesting that the act be observed.

Refusal to co-operate could result in charges being laid.

Files in the companies office at the provincial courthouse are required to show information about companies including officers and shareholders and some basic financial facts regarding mortgages and other encumbrances.

The 1965 annual report shows Robert P. Hagen of Victoria as holding 999 of the 1,000 shares issued by the Colwood Improvement Company. The other was held by David Gardner, listed as an office manager.

His share was held by John O'Hern until 1962. O'Hern was listed as a sales manager with the company.

HAGEL GROUP

The "Hagel Group of Companies" put under trusteeship in 1960 also includes Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens Ltd. which operates Alberni Valley Memorial Gardens at Port Alberni and Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens near Nanaimo; Greencrest Memorial Gardens Ltd. of Kelowna, which operates Lakeview Memorial Park at Kelowna; and General Services (Administrative) Ltd. of Colwood.

Earlier this year the PUC awarded another Hagel Company, Island Crematoriums Ltd., the right to build and run a crematorium near Nanaimo to serve Vancouver Island north from Duncan.

Two other applicants for the crematorium licence said the company's financial record made it an unsuitable candidate to run the crematorium.

SHORTAGES

The crematorium was estimated to earn about $36,000 in profits between now and 1975. The facility now is in operation.

The PUC hasn't said what

Lukaitis Charges Quaife 'Throttles the Press'

duncan cowichan

DUNCAN — Mayoralty candidate Ald. Martin Lukaitis Monday night launched a scattergun attack against Myor Jim Quaife — but hardly any members of the public were on hand to hear the blasts.

Of the 36 who attended a Cowichan Toastmasters' meeting for Duncan candidates; 12 were candidates and some of their wives, four were members of the press, six were high school students, three were North Cowichan residents who aren't eligible to vote in Duncan and a scattering were Duncan taxpayers.

'NOT ENTITLED'

Lukaitis charged that "the present mayor feels the taxpayer is not entitled to ask questions; just pay the bill."

He claimed that Quaife has "throttled the press gallery" at times, handled communications without them (the press) even appearing before council, and blamed Quaife because the city now faces "thousands of dollars in legal suit" regarding a contract for a new water tower.

The incident cited when Lukaitis charged the press had been throttled involved the introduction of a $3,500 study on council and its administration. Before it is to be released Quaife has asked council to agree to remove two pages from the 40-page study which involved the personalities and characters of some employees.

AGAINST IT

Council passed a motion in agreement, although Lukaitis was against it because he wanted the whole report to be made public. To date no further action has been taken regarding the report. Quaife said any action is to be determined by council as a whole.

Quaife said written in the contract with the contractor of the new water tank was the responsibility for securing all permits.

He said the company tore down the old tank, which had been built in the neighboring municipality more than 20 years ago, without securing a permit and so it must bear the responsibility for its action.

When the North Cowichan building inspector discovered the unpermitted construction he ordered it halted.

Quaife said North Cowichan council has now issued a permit and agreed to have the construction carried out under the present zoning because "it is pertinent to residents around it."

He said the company is now back to work. He said the company tried to collect for damages because construction was held up but the "city was not responsible."

In his five-minute presentation Quaife said Duncan cannot afford to be parochial and that he would like to see joint water and sewer boards set up with North Cowichan.

FIVE CANDIDATES

Five candidates are running for the three two-year aldermanic seats on council.

Incumbent John Homer, who has been on council for one year, feels that a swimming pool is vitally important for the community.

Incumbent Tom Kilpatrick, wso has been city alderman for the past six years, said he would like to see an area near McAdam Park set up for children to play street hockey. He expressed his concern over the hazard of this sport that is steadily increasing in the city's streets. He said the area could also be used for lacrosse and flooded in the winter for skating.

Incumbent Jay Powley, who has been on council one year, said he regrets that council got sidetracked on their centennial project and cut the small theatre from the senior citizen-library complex. He said that facilities currently under construction for the senior citizens would not be adequate should they all decide to turn up at meetings.

Ken Paskin, president of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce, said he would like to see a swimming pool built but feels it should be financed by the people who would use it and not by old-age pensioners.

Bob Young, sales representative with B.C. Hydro, said he will not allow himself to become "a shadowy figure" at city hall. "I will always be ready to listen to you," he said.

Three candidates running for one one-year seat are Andy Anand, Ted Fox and Bob Willis.

Willis said he hoped that Duncan taxpayers would see fit to support "a native Duncan boy" while Anand said he would like to see a swimming pool constructed. Anand said that people in the valley have been working for a pool for more than four years. He said with the steady increase in construction and material costs that Operations-Recreations pool fund of $85,000 is already "wiped out."

Fox, a Duncan businessman, said businessmen should be involved in the political life of a community.

Incumbent school trustee Stan Turner and dentist Don Martin are competing for the one Duncan seat on the local school board.

Turner stressed that "the board really does care about good education." He said Cowichan had the lowest administration costs on Vancouver Island at 7.9 per cent of their budget and one of the highest for education at 79.6 per cent. He said his past term as trustee has been very exciting and very busy.

Martin feels that the present school board is "a little naive about higher education — at least post-secondary education."

He said there are few people if any on the school board who have a university degree and feels that he could contribute with his experience in higher education.

SPEC Noise Survey Needs Federal Aid

DUNCAN — Cowichan-Malahat SPEC applied Monday for a $32,000 grant through the federal government's make-work plan to have a community noise survey carried out.

North Cowichan Mayor Gerry Smith, who is vice-president of the group, said the survey would involve employing 15 people for four months who would work in an area of 150 square miles. Population of this area is 25,000.

Smith pointed out that his council is constantly receiving complaints about noise pollution and feels that the study is going to become a common thing.

New President

VANCOUVER (CP)—Unofficial results from Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada elections show Fred Mullin has defeated incumbent Stan Shewaga as leader in a reversal from last year's election when Shewaga replaced Mullin. The official count of ballots from the 5,000 PPWC members will take place this weekend.

Mayoralty candidate Bill Scott has day in court.

Harshly Treated by Police, Arrested Candidate Claims

By DOUG MacRAE
Times Staff

Mayoralty candidate Bill Scott charged today he was given unduly harsh treatment by city police after his arrest at the Royal Theatre Monday night on a charge of assault by trespass.

Scott, 73, pleaded not guilty in provincial court this morning. He was remanded to Jan. 3 to fix a date for trial.

Scott said after his court appearance he was stripped of his shoes and forced to stand in police cells for two hours before bail was arranged by his lawyer, Rod Taylor.

The candidate also said he was not given an opportunity to count the cash on his person before it was taken by police. The amount involved was about $400, he said.

Scott challenged Isherwood's cultural credentials, first by reciting Shakespeare and then by singing an operatic aria.

When police arrived, Scott said he greeted them by singing Gilbert and Sullivan's "A Policeman's Lot Is Not a Happy One."

Taylor asked Judge William Ostler if the case could be disposed of quickly, "before a certain contest this Saturday."

Ostler noted that because a number of witnesses would be called in the case, the Crown could not reasonably be expected to be ready to proceed today — although an unexpected snarl in the calendar would have provided the necessary court time.

Scott also claimed police refused him permission to call his lawyer, a doctor or Mayor Haddock.

Taylor said he was notified by police of Scott's arrest and detention. The lawyer hurried to the station and arranged for Scott's release on his own recognizance.

The candidate has demanded a hearing before the police commission on his charges. He said Mayor Haddock had already apologized for the incident.

Victoria deputy police chief Ray Maitland said in an interview he had had no opportunity to speak to the jailer, but he was sure that Scott would have been "treated with every courtesy befitting the situation."

Maitland said there were certain regulations enforced for the safety of apprehended persons, such as depriving him of such items as shoes and tie.

On Scott's statement that he would seek a police commission hearing of the charges, Maitland said that would be up to the mayor and the commission.

"I would welcome a hearing if that's what Mr. Scott wants," he added.

Scott noted that should he win in Saturday's election he would, as the city's chief magistrate, be conducting the commission inquiry himself.

Trudeau More Optimistic

Times News Service

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau returned from Washington today, expressing optimism that the United States would withdraw its 10 per cent import surcharge if a meeting of the Group of Ten later this month is successful.

Speaking at a news conference in the U.S. capital following two meetings Monday with President Nixon, Trudeau earlier said that U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally was hopeful that the upcoming monetary meeting in Washington would produce some world currency alignments.

He said however if the December session is not conclusive, negotiators will have another chance to reach some sort of agreement in January.

During the 45-minute news conference Trudeau said his talks with Nixon indicated that the United States is respecting Canadian identity and has not "stopped loving us."

NO HEADLINES

The prime minister said the Canadian delegation discussed many bilateral problems but assured newsmen that there will be "no headlines this morning" as far as reporting of any substantial agreements. He said he and Nixon made "another step in over-all progress" but repeated that there was nothing concrete.

Regarding the 1965 Canadian-American auto pact, Trudeau said Canada did not press any new concessions to the United States and that his talks on the subject with Nixon were of a general nature.

"We let the slugging go on in the other room," Trudeau said, referring to more detailed talks on the same subject between Finance Minister Edgar J. Benson, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin and their U.S. counterparts, Con-

Terror Fire Kills Sally Ann Worker

BELFAST (CP)—A woman Salvation Army worker was killed and more than 600 workers are jobless today in the aftermath of a terror bombing that ignited Belfast's worst fire in many years, destroying an entire block of buildings in the city centre.

The Associated Press said it was the worst fire in a decade; Reuter said it was believed to be the biggest since the wartime German blitz against Northern Ireland's capital city.

Security authorities blamed the Irish Republic Army for the bombs which Monday night ripped into a six-floor carpet factory.

Sharp Increase In B.C. Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — The chill winds of approaching winter pushed the jobless total up to 503,000 last month, a sharp increase for the month but about average for this time of year, Statistics Canada reported today.

While unemployment in British Columbia jumped to 7.1 per cent last month from 5.7 in October, it remained short of the 8.6-per-cent rate recorded in November last year.

As expected because of the season, there were sharply fewer jobs available in agriculture and construction. And while employment in the trade industries improved, there were more layoffs in manufacturing.

The 503,000 without jobs at mid-November compared with 447,000 at mid-October and 476,000 at mid-November last year. An estimated 46,000 workers left the labor market in November this year, reducing the total labor force to 8.65 million from nearly 8.7 million in October.

This meant that the actual rate of unemployment as a percentage of the total labor force rose last month to 5.8 from 5.1 in October. It was 5.7 per cent in November last year.

SAYS TREND DOWN

However, Statistics Canada said the underlying trend of unemployment edged down a bit last month.

Taking its actual survey figures and modifying them to reflect the trend of unemployment without the seasonal factors such as the approaching winter, the statistics bureau said the seasonally-adjusted rate declined to 6.6 in November from 6.7 in October.

It had reached a peak of 7.1 in September after dropping to 6.3 last July.

Economists normally look to this seasonally-adjusted rate to indicate how well the country is performing. Month-to-month actual rates can vary widely between high unemployment in the depths of winter and lower jobless figures at the peak of summer activity.

The bureau reported the number of workers employed declined to 2.15 million from 8.25 million in October. This was slightly larger than an average month-to-month decline in the number of workers with jobs, and most of the decline was seasonal in nature.

Concerning the jobless, the bureau said there was an above-average increase in unemployment among men aged 25 and over, while the increased jobless numbers among men and women aged 24 and younger was usual for this time of year.

The figures are estimates based on a Statistics Canada survey of 30,000 households, taken for the week ended Nov. 13.

SHOTS MISS CANADA PLANE

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian Hercules transport plane turned back from a second attempt to land at Dacca in East Pakistan today after anti-aircraft fire was spotted from ships in the Bay of Bengal, a defence department spokesman said.

He said the anti-aircraft fire was close enough to cause concern to the Hercules crew. The plane was not hit and nobody was injured.

India Claims East Victory

Times News Services

India claimed sweeping victories in East Pakistan today, saying the Pakistani army was in retreat. It called for the Pakistanis to surrender there. But in the West, India admitted setbacks in Kashmir.

India abandoned Chamb, in western Kashmir, 30 miles from the major Indian city of Jammu, a spokesman said.

But in East Pakistan, India claimed the Pakistani army was cut off by air and sea and Gen. Sam Maneckshaw, Indian chief of staff, told the 80,000 Pakistini fighting there:

Radio Pakistan announced that President Yahya Khan had asked two prominent politicians to form a civilian government. No date was set. Nurual Amin, a rightist from East Pakistan, was offered the post of prime minister with former foreign minister Zulfika Ali Bhutto, leader of the leftist People's Party, as deputy prime minister.

Meanwhile at the United Nations the General Assembly began emergency debate on the Indo-Pakistani war today with Argentina proposing an immediate ceasefire and withdrawal of troops of both sides.

The war issue was sent to the General Assembly Monday night after Soviet vetoes twice blocked similar proposals in the security council.

And in Washington the United States announced today its decision to channel all further peacemaking efforts in the India-Pakistan war through the United Nations General Assembly.

RAPID ADVANCE

A Pakistini spokesman in Rawalpindi said the Pakistani forces were advancing rapidly in Kashmir.

The Chamb sector is in southwestern Kashmir between the Indian city of Jammu, and Sailkot in West Pakistan. It is ideal for tank manoeuvres and was the scene of heavy fighting in the 1965 war between India and Pakistan for the still-disputed territory of Kashmir.

The Indian spokesman said Pakistani forces have put heavy pressure on the Chamb sector and Poonch to the north since last Wednesday.

"The main activity has been in those two sectors of Jammu and Kashmir," he said, "and they have repeatedly tried to capture Poonch."

The spokesman added that the purpose of the Pakistani attack in the Chamb sector was to cut the New Delhi-Kashmir highway, which parallels the border for nearly 30 miles and runs through the Chamb areas.

Poonch is a major link between the Pakistan capital of Rawalpindi and Srinagar, the Indian capital of Kashmir.

In addition to committing the ground forces, the Pakistanis have flown scores of sor-

ROBOT ON MARS

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union parachuted the first scientific robot on to Mars but its television signals stopped after only "brief" operation amid hurricane-force dust storms, the Tass news agency said Tuesday.

The landing took place five days ago, but Tass did not report it until today. The report gave no reason for the delay, and it gave no hint of what caused the robot to fail after an apparent successful soft landing.

The U.S. Mariner 9 photographic probe has reported that a dust storm is raging over most of the planet's surface. Tass said wind speed on Mars may be as high as 300 miles an hour.

Tass said the Mars robot broke away from its Mars mother ship on Dec. 2 after an 188-day journey from earth. It parachuted to a Martian plain in the southern hemisphere between the regions of Electris and Phaetonic.

Atom Plant Bombed

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Two bombs exploded at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center today, causing what officials estimated at up to $100,000 damage to the world's largest device for atomic particle research.

There were no injuries and no radiation leaks, officials said.

Burial Firm May Face Charge

A cemetery company under provincial government trusteeship for almost two years has failed to file an annual report with the provincial companies office for the past six years.

Colwood Improvement Company Ltd. which runs the Colwood Cemetery Company, Hatley Memorial Gardens and Colwood Burial Park on Sooke Road, hasn't filed an annual report since 1965.

The Companies Act requires annual meetings and annual reports and failure to observe the act can result in fines of up to $500 a day.

The Public Utilities Commission appointed a trustee-administrator to take charge of the company in March, 1969, citing shortages in cemetery perpetual care and maintenance funds as the reason.

Other related cemetery companies in Port Alberni and Kelowna were also put under trusteeship. These have been filing annual reports as required by law.

A companies office spokesman said Monday the Colwood Improvement Company would be sent a formal letter requesting that the act be observed.

Refusal to co-operate could result in charges being laid.

Files in the companies office at the provincial courthouse are required to show information about companies including officers and shareholders and some basic financial facts regarding mortgages and other encumbrances.

The 1965 annual report shows Robert P. Hagen of Victoria as holding 999 of the 1,000 shares issued by the Colwood Improvement Company. The other was held by David Gardner, listed as an office manager.

His share was held by John O'Hern until 1962. O'Hern was listed as a sales manager with the company.

HAGEL GROUP

The "Hagel Group of Companies" put under trusteeship in 1970 also includes Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens Ltd. which operates Alberni Valley Memorial Gardens at Port Alberni and Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens near Nanaimo; Greencrest Memorial Gardens Ltd. of Kelowna, which operates Lakeview Memorial Park at Kelowna; and General Services (Administrative) Ltd. of Colwood.

Earlier this year the PUC awarded another Hagel Company, Island Crematoriums Ltd., the right to build and run a crematorium near Nanaimo to serve Vancouver Island north from Duncan.

Two other applicants for the crematorium licence said the company's financial record made it an unsuitable candidate to run the crematorium.

SHORTAGES

The crematorium was estimated to earn about $36,000 in profits between now and 1975. The facility now is in operation.

The PUC hasn't said what

Employer Response to Jobless Plan Growing Quickly

Employer response in Victoria and Vancouver to a new federal program set up to help employ the growing number of jobless who lack work experience is "starting to accelerate rapidly."

George Bevis, who was recently appointed by Canada Manpower as the Vancouver Island District co-ordinator for Ottawa's new special employment programs, said today about 100 applications have come into the regional office for the training-on-the-job program.

Bevis said that initial approvals will be made shortly by Manpower, through which the federal government will pay 75 per cent of wages to an employer who will train a person, between three and 12 months, for a newly-created job.

Bevis said this program is more or less designed to assist young persons, graduate students and married women seeking to enter the work force, all of whom would lack practical work experience.

Meanwhile, the federal government today announced approval of 33 projects, totalling $908,554, for community groups in B.C.

Two were approved for Victoria, and four for other Island centres under this incentive program which is also being co-ordinated by Bevis' new office.

James Bay United Church Action Committee will get $14,976 to hire five persons for outreach programs, and the Vic West Community Development Association will receive $16,380 for renovations to its 519 Craigflower property and for its planned after-school-care centre.

Elsewhere on the Island, the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum will get $20,569 to construct a restoration building, the Alberni Low Income Group $25,938 for cleaning up and repiring senior citizen homes, the Denman Island Community Club $16,400 to clear a park and construct a boat-ramp, and the Campbell River Family Services Society $10,200 to set up a crisis centre.

Bevis, in his new appointment, will be replaced by Doug Yearwood as Victoria Manpower manager until the incentive program expires at the end of May.

Intensive Care Unit Ruled Out

A proposal to establish an expanded intensive care unit on the sixth floor of St. Joseph's Hospital has been ruled out because of the cost, executive director Embert Van Tilburg said today.

A $2,500 feasibilty study by the hospital's architects wasn't completed after preliminary studies showed developing a nine or 10-bed unit for intensive care of the acutely ill would have cost $650,000.

It would have meant building a new stairwell from the ground to the sixth floor, expanding elevator facilities as well as adding wiring and plumbing, said Dr. Van Tilburg. The cost was prohibitive.

BIGGEST PROBLEM

He described the shortage of intensive care facilities at the hospital its biggest problem at the moment.

A hospital's intensive care unit involves sophisticated telemetry for monitoring the minute-by-minute condition of critically ill patients such as heart attack or accident victims. It has a high ratio highly-qualified nursing staff.

SISTERS MOVED

There has been no increase in the four-bed intensive care unit the hospital now has for a number of years. But a steadily increasing patient load has produced a need for at least twice as many, said Van Tilburg.

One of the problems the hospital has faced is space to locate any expansion of the unit. But a year ago the Sisters of St. Ann moved out of the hospital's sixth floor. It was a preliminary step by the Sisters, who founded the hospital 95 years ago, to turning the hospital over to the community.

There had been accommodation for 28 Sisters on the sixth floor.

CRITICISM

Instead of the expanded intensive care unit, the vacated space will now be used for employee facilities, including lockers and change rooms, Van Tilburg said.

Lack of space for employees and the run-down condition of what facilities there were have produced increasingly militant criticism from the Hospital Employees Union in recent years. The hospital board earlier this year moved provision of better staff facilities to a high position on its priority list.

YOUTH'S DAY

The four Victoria mayoralty candidates will be quizzed by the young people of the city during an open meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday arranged by Cool Aid.

The meeting will be held at Cool Aid's hostel at 1950 Fernwood.

SAANICH GIVING EXCESS SWANS

Saanich will be losing four of its mute swans, but gaining some trumpeter swans.

It was considered a fair exchange by Saanich council Monday night, when approval was given to a parks committee recommendation that one pair of cygnets each should be donated to the communities of Powell River and Waterloo, Ont.

As the item came up for discussion Ald. William Noel told council that parks administrator Bert Richman had been informed by the provincial wildlife branch that some trumpeter swans would be given to the municipality.

"I think trumpeters would be — noisy?" suggested Mayor Hugh Curtis — "an asset to the municipality," Noel said.

The alderman said the mute swans on Elk and Beaver Lakes were increasing at "rather an alarming rate" and posing a problem to the parks department in severe winters.

Ald. Ed Lu, chairman of the parks committee, agreed that the rising swan population is a bit of a headache, and said council should consider any further requests from communities wanting the birds.

Here Curtis chuckled as he read Richman's written report, commenting: "He says as it would be difficult to administer The Pill he recommends we should donate swans from time to time to interested communities."

'No Mark On Horse When Sold'

A woman horsebreeder testified in County Court today that a horse which ran at Sandown Park Aug. 21 appeared to have an identifying mark it should not have had if it was the same horse listed for the race.

The testimony came in the trial of owner-trainer David Baxter of Vancouver, who is accused of running another horse, Music Melody, as a substitute for the horse Last Note.

Baxter is accused of fraud in the alleged substitution in the seventh race on the last day of this summer's meet at Sandown.

Both horses involved are three-year-old fillies owned by Baxter, but Music Melody had a much better racing record.

This morning, Joan Hess of Delta testified she bred and raised Last Note and sold her to Baxter for $500 three days before the race in question. She said Last Note had never won a race while she owned her.

Mrs. Hess, a mother of five, watched a videotape replay of the seventh race and studied track photos. She said she thought she saw a white mark on the forehead of the horse pictured as running in the race under the name of Last Note.

Mrs. Hess said there was no such marking on Last Note.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Hess said she had discussed her testimony in detail during a phone call from one of the officers investigating the charge.

The jury also heard a running commentary on the race from North Vancouver jockey Devin Patrick Furlong, who rode the horse listed as Last Note in the race program.

It was the seventh race on the last day of the three-week Sandown meet. Furlong's horse finished second, paying $37.30 in a quinella pool with the winner, Miss Jay Note.

Furlong said he was fouled by the winning horse at the far turn, when Miss Jay Note brushed him in passing.

The jockey said Baxter agreed to a protest on the foul being lodged after the race, even though the owner knew it would mean the race would come under close scrutiny by

Defence lawyer Paul Delaney of Vancouver discounted the videotape evidence because the picture was so small it was impossible to spot numbers on the horses.

Service Operations Ready for Christmas

Telephone operators, air line crews, ferry crewmen and others who serve the public are gearing themselves for the busy holiday season.

An army of 2,500 telephone operators will be on duty Christmas Day throughout British Columbia. For them it will be the busiest day of the year.

In Greater Victoria 168 operators will be working five, 5½ and six-hour shifts, manning every station.

A B.C. Telephone Company spokesman estimated today the local switchboards will handle 16,500 operator-helped calls that day (an increase of 2,500 over last year's) plus 31,000 direct-line out-of-town calls.

He said that in spite of the fact that every station will be manned there will be delays because of backup calls. Because Boxing Day falls on a Sunday this year, both Christmas Day and that day calls will be based on the less expensive Sunday rates.

As in past years, the telephone company is making out special emergency cards with the telephone bills this month.

The spokesman said he hoped that every resident would complete these with the numbers of all emergency contacts, such as fire and police departments, doctors and ambulance services.

"With every operator on duty working all out we don't want any person, who needs to make an emergency call, having to wait to get through to an operator," he added.

Extra air flights, both between Victoria and Vancouver and trans-Canada east to west and west to east, will help move the thousands moving to and from holidays at home.

Air Canada officials estimate the heavy passenger loads will start building Dec. 20 with Jan. 2, 3 and 4 hitting the peaks.

Except for Christmas Day itself, when the B.C. Ferries will restrict service between Victoria and Vancouver to a two-ship operation in order to allow crews to be home with their families, extra sailings have been scheduled every day from Dec. 18 to Jan. 4.

From Dec. 18 to 24 and from Dec. 26 to 28 there will be hourly sailings from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. between the Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay terminals.

The same sailings are scheduled from Dec. 31 to Jan.4.

On Dec. 29 and 30 the sailing times from Tsawwassen will be 7, 8, 9 and 11 a.m., noon, 1, 3, 5, 6, 7, 9 and 10 p.m. From Swartz Bay the schedule will be 7, 9, 10 and 11 a.m., 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 9 p.m.

Ask The Times

Q: I understand it will cost the city $60,000 to repair the ceiling of Memorial Arena. What has it cost to keep the ceiling in repair since it was built?—D.H.

A: The Memorial Arena has had two previous major repair jobs. The first cost $24,000 and treated the roof exterior. Two years ago the interior of the roof was repaired at a cost of $60,000.

Compensation Payments Stopped for UVic Student

A 23-year-old University of Victoria student who is fighting the Workmen's Compensation Board over an injury claim said today the board apparently considers there's no connection between his shoulder and his neck.

Raymond Windecker, of 2064 Allenby, said that essentially this is the basis on which the board is arguing that he is no longer entitled to compensation for an injury he received in a logging accident last summer.

MAY LEAVE

But as he began picketing the WCB office in Victoria today, Windecker said he will continue the fight — including legal action if necessary — to have compensation payments restored.

If he is unsuccessful he may have to leave UVic where he had hoped to gain a bachelor of arts degree next spring. He had planned to study law after that.

Windecker said he was hurt when he fell from a log near Tahsis last June, while working for Gran Bay Logging. On his claim form, which he submitted to the WCB, he described the injury as being in the back and neck region.

A series of examinations by doctors and orthopedic surgeons followed, including a stay in the WCB clinic in Vancouver where he was told he needed rest and further treatment.

But the board agreed to his suggestion that he should attend university rather than remain idle.

Windecker said at this point his compensation fell to $6 a day from the $400 a month he had been receiving, and then payments ceased altogether Nov. 7.

DOCTOR'S REPORT

The cutoff followed a report by a neurosurgeon that the trouble was due to a "neck and shoulder girdle injury," Windecker said.

In the letter informing him of the decision, T. G. Kirby, the board's claims officer in Vancouver in Vancouver, said "It is noted that your present problems are centred in your right shoulder. . . . This, it should be pointed out, is not part of your claim as your claim was accepted for injuries to your neck."

Windecker said: "If the neurosurgeon's examination referred to my left foot being hurt I could understand their attitude.

"But surely as far as any doctor is concerned the neck, shoulder and back are all interconnected?"

The board's attitude seemed to indicate his neck and shoulder were separate entities instead of only inches apart, he added.

Windecker said his injury still causes him discomfort and strain, especially during long classroom sessions and while driving.

A spokesman for the WCB said in Vancouver today that Windecker's appeal against the board's decision had been received, and a board of review will meet soon to consider his case in the light of the medical evidence available.

"He should have a decision within a week," the spokesman said.

Concert Saving $3,500

When 280 musicians take the stage tonight at theRoyal Theatre their performance will represent a donation of $3,500 on behalf of Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

That is the amount of the fees being waived by guest pianist Ronald Turini, the soloists, the University of Victoria Chorus, the orchestra itself and maestro Laszlo Gati.

The repeat of the Sunday-Monday sold-out concerts has been undertaken in the hope that those who missed what has been described as a highlight of the season, those who would like a friend to hear it or the patrons who would enjoy a second visit, will take the opportunity to support the symphony.

One change has been made in the repeat program. It will include Turini playing the Rachmaninoff D minor Concerto and the great Kodaly Te Deum with University of Victoria chorus and guest soloists. But instead of the Violet Archer Fancare and Passacaglia, the concert will open with Mozart's Don Giovanni Overture.

Tickets will be available at the Royal before starting time of 8:30 p.m.

"There is nothing new in a symphony having financial problems," Turini said today.

"What is new is that the musicians of the orchestra should volunteer a free service as a start to a fund-raising campaign."

Turini Rehearses for Tonight

He said the symphony "is not just a good orchestra for this city, it is a very good orchestra in any context."

He said the musicians are "very flexible" and they watch the baton well.

Turini said he doesn't recall much about the orchestra when he played in it in 1961 "but there is no doubt that Laszlo Gati has done a great job."

Crash Victim Honored by Trail

A hiking and riding trail will be blazed this weekend in Central Saanich in memory of Gail Wickens, 30, victim of a traffic accident Nov. 24.

Dawn Ruthven of the Garden City Horsemen Club, Bruce Hardy and Phil Kisslinger of the Sierra Club of B.C. asked Central Saanich council Monday for permission to construct the Thompson trail as a joint effort involving outdoor and riding clubs with which Mrs. Wickens had been affiliated.

The 1½-mile link will connect Mount Newton Cross-Road with John Dean Park, an area which Mrs. Ruthven says is ideal for riding and hiking.

About 250 persons will work this weekend clearing a trail, from which motorcycles will be prohibited. Other clubs involved are the Victoria Western Horsemen's Club, The Victoria and Saanich Pony Club and 4-H clubs.

Mrs. Wickens had five children in her car when it was in collision with another auto at Sayward and the Pat Bay Highway.

LOW RENT HOUSING URGED FOR JOBLESS

The Greater Victoria Low Income Group has suggested to Oak Bay council that low rental accommodation be built for single, unemployed people in Greater Victoria.

The request, in the form of a letter which council filed, suggested the project be undertaken by the four core municialities.

The society, which advocated rentals as low as $95 monthly, claimed the moves was necessary because of a "verbal directive" from the provincial department of rehabilitation and social improvement.

This directive, the letter claimed, denied single, employable welfare recipients benefits if they live in outlying areas and do not move into the city where work would be more readily available.

Pollen Back Fighting

Mayoralty candidate Peter Pollen said today Mayor Haddock is using his aldermen to avoid fighting an open election campaign.

Pollen was replying to a statement of support for Haddock by Ald. Percy Frampton.

"Unfortunately Ald. Frampton who is not up for re-election is being used as a decoy to draw attention away from Mr. Haddock's complete lack of a program," Pollen said.

'BETTER SPENT'

"Ald. Frampton's time could be better spent fulfilling his responsibilities on council"

Pollen said Haddock "refuses to outline any kind of platform or to debate any issues."

"This is the way city council has been manoeuvred for the last two years — intelligent discussion or debate is avoided at all costs."

Pollen said the city "urgently needs a leader" to restore its position on regional government, to cope with acute shortage of hospital beds, to plan for Inner Harbor development, to establish a downtown businessmen's advisory committee, to develop shopping malls downtown, "before cars overwhelm people."

Pollen said the city "urgently needs a leader that will not only allow but encourage and participate in intelligent debate. The city needs a mayor with a knowledge of modern management who understands that intelligent use of money is just as important as collecting the tax money."

FACING CRISIS

He said Victoria is facing a crisis "due to this complete lack of leadership in defined objectives.

"I challenge him to publicly debate the issues. Why is he hiding — why the secrecy? The time has come for full disclosure. Secrecy must end."
